The board of directors of the Warner hospital, meeting Friday evening, expressed their thanks to the residents of the area for their generous support of the letter donation system inaugurated several years ago.

During the past ten months, reports at the meeting held in the board room in the hospital showed, a total of $12,794 was donated to the hospital by 5,897 persons.

The reports disclosed that during the period from December 1, 1949, to October 5, letters asking contributions had been sent to 11,097 persons, and that more than half of that number had made donations ranging upward from $1 each.

Because of the continued excellent response to the appeal the directors voted to continue the letter solicitation for funds another year. Members of the board noted that the continued general support of the hospital through the letter contribution program served to keep the hospital from going deeply in debt in its operation.

Purchase of a new film developer tank for the X-ray department was authorized. The new tank, to be purchased at a cost of $1,975, will replace a present tank which has worn out after long usage. The board voted to purchase a larger size tank than the present one in order to take care of the increased need.

Dr. Philip Diefenderfer Dudick, Littlestown, was recommended by the board to be a member of the hospital staff.

Monthly Report Given

The report on the financial situation of the hospital showed a decline under the previous month in income due to the seasonal drop in the number of patients at the hospital. The average number of patients per day during September was listed as 70, including 56 adults and 14 new born children. There were 69 patients in the hospital as of September 1, and 261 were admitted during the month. Two hundred and fifty-eight were discharged and five deaths occurred. The number of patients remaining September 30 was 67. A total of 76 births, 37 male and 39 female, occurred during the month.

Richard Livingston, New Oxford, vice president of the board, presided at the session. Carl Baum acted as secretary. Other members of the board attending the session included Howard Musselman, Orttanna; John F. Bream, Fairfield; Guy Stock, Bendersville; John A. Hauser, Biglerville, and Attorney Richard A. Brown, Joseph E. Codori, William Durban and Dr. Frank H. Kramer, all of Gettysburg. Also attending the meeting were Walter Doud, administrator of the hospital and Dr. Roy Gifford, associate surgeon.

NEW OXFORD FIRM NAMED IN COURT SUIT

A damage suit was brought in Dauphin county court by George Semic, Steelton, against the General Automatic Products corporation, Baltimore, New Oxford, for injuries received when an oil burner exploded.

In a statement it is alleged that Semic, superintendent of the candy factory of the Penbrook Candy company, Inc., in Middletown, assisted fellow employees in attempting to re-light the oil burner when oil fumes in the burner, ignited by a spark jumping between exposed electric wires, exploded.

It is alleged that Semic was thrown a distance of 14 feet and that he suffered deep lacerations of the face, severance of the seventh cranial nerve, first and second degree burns of the face. It is also claimed that he suffered contusions of the back resulting in severe and chronic headaches and a paralysis of a portion of the face. He also sustained "disfiguring scars," it is claimed.

In the latter part of November, 1949, it is claimed the General Automatic Products corporation negligently adjusted certain insulated wires in the fan of the burner in such a manner that at some prior time to the accident the insulation was worn from the wires by the rotation of the fan, so that sparks could jump the gap between the exposed current-carrying wires.

It is also claimed that the oil company inspected the burner and after making certain repairs informed the plaintiff that the "burner was in perfect operating condition." This was prior to the time of the explosion.

List Attractions For Radio Party

OUTLOOK GOOD ON SMALL GAME WITH SEASON OPENING NOV. 1

Adams county's 4,000 hunters can start out Wednesday morning with the best hope in years of bringing home rabbits, squirrels and ring-necks.

Ringneck pheasants in particular are present in larger numbers than ever before, County Game Warden Leo Bushman pointed out. He added the precautionary note, however, that the comparison is with previous years, and does not indicate that every hunter will find a ringneck perched in his gun sights as soon as he goes hunting Wednesday morning.

However, Bushman said there apparently has been a very large increase in the number of pheasants in the county this year and more hunters should be able to bag their bird than have had that fortune in previous years.

Wild Turkeys Protected

Wednesday, November 1, will mark the opening of the bobwhite quail, Hungarian partridge, ruffed grouse, wild turkeys, ringneck pheasant, cottontail rabbit, gray, black and fox squirrel seasons. The season for the quails, partridges, and grouse extends to November 15, while for the other game the end of the season will be November 25.

There was a warning note injected into the wild turkey season. There are some wild turkey in Adams county—but the hunter better not take a shot at them. If he wants to hunt turkey let him go anywhere in the state except Adams county and a few other counties. In those sections the turkey is free to live and multiply protected against the hunter.

The day and season limit for pheasants—and only males may be shot—is two per day and eight for the season. The limit on rabbits and squirrels is four per day and 20 for the season, with the exception of red squirrels. Anyone can bang away at as many red squirrels as he wishes anytime in the year, except October.

Shooting Begins At 9 A.M.

The hunter was cautioned to carry his watch with him on the opening day and make sure that the time is correct. There will be no hunting of any kind before 9 a.m. on Wednesday, the rules decree, and shooting game before that hour is one of the easier ways of being fined on a game violation charge. A gun's report can be heard a long way, it was noted, and game wardens also wear watches and know that gunshots heard before 9 a.m. on November 1 should be investigated.

Game officials, conservationists, and other joined in the usual warning to the hunters to be careful, and to look before they fire. Hunters were asked particularly to hunt away from farm buildings, instead of toward them. The leaden pellets of a shot gun carry some distance and valuable farm animals have been killed or injured when a hunter fired toward the barnyard forgetting that the shot would go beyond the spot where he saw the rabbit.

Littlestown TO LAUNCH $500 FUND CAMPAIGN

Samuel H. Higinbotham, president of the Littlestown Chamber of Commerce and general chairman for the Salvation Army in Littlestown and vicinity, today announced that a fund raising campaign for $500 for the Salvation Army will get underway Monday.

Mr. Higinbotham stated that a committee to be known as "The Salvation Army Littlestown Service Unit" will be organized to render immediate emergency assistance to those of Littlestown and vicinity who may be in need of temporary assistance of any nature. Higinbotham pointed out that a portion of the funds raised will be held locally for use by the Service Unit committee the remainder of funds will support the national program of the Salvation Army which serves the armed forces throughout the world. Higinbotham stated that the door to door solicitation will be conducted by David C. Broadwater of the Salvation Army Service Unit department and that no uniformed solicitors will be calling on the citizens of Littlestown.

He also stated that letters of appeal are being sent out to clubs and associations, professional groups, industries and the rural areas. Charles C. Wilson, the field representative for the Salvation Army, will make a personal visit to some of the larger industries.

Arthur Bair of the Littlestown National bank will serve as the local treasurer. Those wishing to mail in their contributions may send them directly to Mr. Bair or to Mr. Higinbotham.

Recreation Association And Free Library Chest Members

Contributions made to the Gettysburg Recreation association through the community chest have two functions, it was noted today.

Of the $7,500 set aside for the recreation association from the $22,000 sought in the current Community Chest drive, $5,000 goes toward the operation of the recreation system during the year. The remaining $2,500 goes into what are termed "permanent improvements"—the improvements being made year by year to improve the association's facilities. In the course of the years the association hopes that it can provide the finest facilities in the state without too greatly "pinching" the pocketbook of the town during any one year.

The money for permanent improvements during the past few years has gone into the development of the Recreation park located on Breckenridge street. So far most of the money has been spent for the necessary grading, grass planting and other work needed to put the 58-acre property into shape for use.

This year additional improvements will be made and eventually, through the years, landscaping, a swimming pool, tennis courts, improved picnic facilities, improved swings, slides, other equipment for the youngsters and smaller improvements will become realities. That is the plan behind the annual donation for permanent improvements.

During the coming year most of the money, and possibly more, if need be, will go into developing toilet facilities at the park. Those facilities, it was decided, are the most pressing need at the time.

The park last summer played host to well over 20,000 visitors. Actual counts of children present for organized play, those present to attend the softball league games and those

Find Burned Bodies Of 9 Americans Near Kujang

By WILLIAM JORDEN

With U.S. 1st Corps, North Korea, Oct. 28 (AP)—The bodies of 30 Americans—nine of them badly burned—have been discovered near Kujang, 30 miles northeast of Anju.

The First Corps judge advocate said today the Americans were found October 22nd in a train which had been attacked by American planes and set afire.

It could not be determined whether further medical examinations whether the men had been killed by the air attack. No dead North Koreans were found.

Two American prisoners were found beside the burning railroad train.

Their names were not immediately available.

Information indicated that nine bodies had been burned as a result of the air strike after the Americans had been killed earlier by their fleeing North Korean captors.

CORONER'S JURY CLEARS TRUCKER IN FATAL CRASH

An Adams county coroner's jury sitting in an inquest Friday afternoon at the court house here found that Harry A. Zentz, Thurmont, Md., trucker "did everything possible to prevent the accident" which resulted in the death of Robert Elwood Arndt, 21, 159 North Stratton street, on October 18.

The jury's verdict held that Arndt "came to his death at 3:40 p.m. October 18, at the Warner hospital by means of contusions of the brain, with hemorrhage, and fractured right arm and leg and that said injuries were inflicted and the death of Robert Arndt was caused by the collision of a car driven by Paul A. Walter, in which Arndt was a passenger, with a truck on Route 34 in Cumberland township on October 17, 1950. The jury believes that Mr. Zentz, driver of the truck, did all he could to prevent the accident."

In its verdict the jury did not directly place blame for the crash on the fog bound night of October 17 about a mile north of here at Grandview terrace along the Biglerville road. It did however seek to free Zentz of any blame in connection with the fatal crash.

Hear Five Witnesses

Zentz, State Policeman James A. Treas, Ivan Breighner, Gettysburg; Dr. Roy W. Gifford, associate surgeon at the Warner hospital, and Donald Stambaugh, Thurmont R. D., a passenger in the truck driven by Zentz, were the witnesses to appear before the jury.

When Walter was called to the stand his attorney, Eugene B. Hartman told Dr. C. G. Crist, the county coroner, who conducted the inquest, that "Mr. Walter wishes to take advantage of his right not to testify."

Zentz and Stambaugh told they were enroute toward Gettysburg from Biglerville when their truck suddenly stopped running. They got out of the cab, planning to place flares, since they could not move the truck from the road. Seeing a car approach they went to the rear of the truck to flag the car down.

Warned Car Driver

Ivan Breighner, driver of the car who was approaching, said he saw someone seeming to be leaping about in the road in front of him in the fog. He said he swerved and then saw the truck which also had been hidden by the fog. He continued toward Gettysburg, saw the ambulance coming out and returned to the scene.

Zentz said he had to leap to escape the Walter car, which approached within a moment after the Breighner car had passed. He said Walter turned in toward him, and he leaped out of the road. There was a crash as the car hit the rear of the truck.

Arndt, a passenger in the Walter car, was taken to the Warner hospital. Doctor Gifford told of the treatment given to the local telegrapher on the night of the accident. The next day he continued to lose strength and a Baltimore brain specialist was called in, who operated to relieve pressure caused by the fractured skull. A short time later on the afternoon of October 18, the young man died.

Skidded 39 Feet

Officer Trivas told of damage caused by the accident. He said he was told the hood of the Walter car flew 60 feet through the air to land south of the scene of the accident. The car skidded 39 feet before hitting the truck. Fog was heavy at the time, he added, stating that visibility was about 60 feet ahead of a car. He gave his opinion of a safe speed under the conditions would have been 25 miles an hour.

Red Koreans Slow Invaders With Tanks Near Border

Seoul, Oct. 28 (AP)—Tank-led Red Koreans slowed to a walk today the United Nations juggernaut grinding toward the Manchurian border in northwest Korea.

The Communists were fighting with reborn fury. Reports persisted that their ranks were bolstered by Chinese Reds wearing North Korean uniforms.

On the northeast coast, South Koreans drove into the port of Songlin, 75 miles southeast of the border.

Ambush Yankees

But more than 150 miles to the south, near liberated Wonsan, 4,000 by-passed Korean Reds battled U. S. Marines. They ambushed one Leatherneck company and cut it to pieces.

Heavy and well-organized Red opposition appeared in northwest Korea. A Red convoy of 50 vehicles was reported sighted 12 miles south of the frontier town of Kanggye.

A spokesman at General MacArthur's headquarters in Tokyo said intelligence sources could neither confirm nor deny presence of Chinese Communist troops in North Korea. He said the situation was not considered alarming.

Intelligence officers expressed general belief that the "Chinese" would prove to be Manchurian-born Koreans, possibly trained in Chinese armies.

Find Hard Going

American, British Commonwealth and South Korean forces found it hard going in northwest Korea along a 35-mile front extending from Kasan to Onjong—points 45 to 55 miles from the Manchurian frontier.

Far to the north of Onjong, a regiment of the South Korean Sixth Division reached the Yalu river boundary Thursday but had to pull back because the Reds cut its supply road.

The British Commonwealth 27th Brigade, operating just ahead of the U. S. 24th Division's Fifth Regiment, was forced to halt near Kasan. Two miles west of the town, the British came under fire of tank-supported Reds dug in on hills on both sides of the road.

Fifth Air Force fighter-bombers and bazooka teams knocked out 10 Red tanks and two self-propelled guns, a U. S. First Army Corps spokesman reported.

THREE INJURED IN AUTO CRASH FRIDAY EVENING

Three persons were injured at 6:15 o'clock Friday evening when automobiles operated by James A. Oyer, 54, of Gettysburg R. 1, and Ronald L. Kennell, 18, of Gettysburg R. 5, collided on the Baltimore pike near the Teeter stone quarries.

Most seriously injured, according to state police of the Gettysburg situation, who investigated the accident, was George Richard Kennell, 17, brother of the driver of one of the cars. He suffered a concussion of the brain and facial lacerations.

Ronald Kennell was treated at the Warner hospital for a laceration of the scalp, and Harry Baker, 65, of Gettysburg R. 1, received treatment for severe facial lacerations. He was riding in the Oyer car. All three were taken to the hospital in the ambulance, police said. The younger Kennell remained as a patient.

Police said Oyer was driving out of a private driveway and Kennell was traveling north on the Baltimore road when the right front parts of each automobile collided. Damage to the Oyer car was estimated at $375 and to the Kennell car at $200.

NEW OXFORD FIRM NAMED IN COURT SUIT

A damage suit was brought in Dauphin county court by George Semic, Steelton, against the General Automatic Products corporation, Baltimore, and the Aero Oil company, New Oxford, for injuries received when an oil burner exploded.

In a statement it is alleged that Semic, superintendent of the candy factory of the Penbrook Candy company, Inc., in Middletown, assisted fellow employees in attempting to re-light the oil burner when oil fumes in the burner, ignited by a spark jumping between exposed electric wires, exploded.

It is alleged that Semic was thrown a distance of 14 feet and that he suffered deep lacerations of the face, severance of the seventh cranial nerve, first and second degree burns of the face. It is also claimed that he suffered contusions of the back resulting in severe and chronic headaches and a paralysis of a portion of the face. He also sustained "disfiguring scars," it is claimed.

In the latter part of November, 1949, it is claimed the General Automatic Products corporation negligently adjusted certain insulated wires in the fan of the burner in such a manner that at some prior time to the accident the insulation was worn from the wires by the rotation of the fan, so that sparks could jump the gap between the exposed current-carrying wires.

It is also claimed that the oil company inspected the burner and after making certain repairs informed the plaintiff that the "burner was in perfect operating condition." This was prior to the time of the explosion.

List Attractions For Radio Party

Halloween and hunting will be featured on this evening's Saturday Night Party over Radio Station WGET from 8 until midnight.

Recreation Director Donald Joseph, Moose Governor Stephen C. Smith, and Halloween Committee Treasurer Charles L. Lauver will tell of details of the Halloween activities for the borough.

It is hoped to present F. Mark Bream and others in connection with hunting. In addition the Rev. Quintin C. Garman, former Gettysburg college and seminary student and well known locally as a softball player in the community league, will tell of his activities in California.

TO CHARGE SPEEDER

Borough police said today a charge of speeding would be filed with a local justice of the peace against L. Duncan Moore, Greencastle, Pa. Moore will be charged with driving 55 miles an hour on York street at 1:30 a.m. today.

COLLIE DOG LOST

R. D. Fidler, Gettys street, reported to borough police this morning the loss of a yellow and white collie dog, three months old.

FILE ESTATE BOND

An administration bond has been filed with the county register and recorder in the estate of Charles E. Haller, late of Gettysburg. Earl G. Haller, 266 Ridge avenue, Gettysburg, is administrator of the $4,500 estate.

OUTLOOK GOOD ON SMALL GAME WITH SEASON OPENING NOV. 1

Adams county's 4,000 hunters can start out Wednesday morning with the best hope in years of bringing home rabbits, squirrels and ring-necks.

Ringneck pheasants in particular are present in larger numbers than ever before, County Game Warden Leo Bushman pointed out. He added the precautionary note, however, that the comparison is with previous years, and does not indicate that every hunter will find a ringneck perched in his gun sights as soon as he goes hunting Wednesday morning.

However, Bushman said there apparently has been a very large increase in the number of pheasants in the county this year and more hunters should be able to bag their bird than have had that fortune in previous years.

Wild Turkeys Protected

Wednesday, November 1, will mark the opening of the bobwhite quail, Hungarian partridge, ruffed grouse, wild turkeys, ringneck pheasant, cottontail rabbit, gray, black and fox squirrel seasons. The season for the quails, partridges, and grouse extends to November 15, while for the other game the end of the season will be November 25.

There was a warning note injected into the wild turkey season. There are some wild turkey in Adams county—but the hunter better not take a shot at them. If he wants to hunt turkey let him go anywhere in the state except Adams county and a few other counties. In those sections the turkey is free to live and multiply protected against the hunter.

The day and season limit for pheasants—and only males may be shot—is two per day and eight for the season. The limit on rabbits and squirrels is four per day and 20 for the season, with the exception of red squirrels. Anyone can bang away at as many red squirrels as he wishes anytime in the fall, except October.

Shooting Begins At 9 A.M.

The hunter was cautioned to carry his watch with him on the opening day and make sure that the time is correct. There will be no hunting of any kind before 9 a.m. on Wednesday, the rules decree, and shooting game before that hour is one of the easier ways of being fined on a game violation charge. A gun's report can be heard a long way, it was noted, and game wardens also wear watches and know that gunshots heard before 9 a.m. on November 1 should be investigated.

Game officials, conservationists, and other joined in the usual warning to the hunters to be careful, and to look before they fire. Hunters were asked particularly to hunt away from farm buildings, instead of toward them. The leaden pellets of a shot gun carry some distance and valuable farm animals have been killed or injured when a hunter fired toward the barnyard forgetting that the shot would go beyond the spot where he saw the rabbit.

Littlestown

TO LAUNCH $500 FUND CAMPAIGN

Samuel H. Higinbotham, president of the Littlestown Chamber of Commerce and general chairman for the Salvation Army in Littlestown and vicinity, today announced that a fund raising campaign for $500 for the Salvation Army will get underway Monday.

Mr. Higinbotham stated that a committee to be known as "The Salvation Army Littlestown Service Unit" will be organized to render immediate emergency assistance to those of Littlestown and vicinity who may be in need of temporary assistance of any nature. Higinbotham pointed out that a portion of the funds raised will be held locally for use by the Service Unit committee the remainder of funds will support the national program of the Salvation Army which serves the armed forces throughout the world. Higinbotham stated that the door to door solicitation will be conducted by David C. Broadwater of the Salvation Army Service Unit department and that no uniformed solicitors will be calling on the citizens of Littlestown.

He also stated that letters of appeal are being sent out to clubs and associations, professional groups, industries and the rural areas. Charles C. Wilson, the field representative for the Salvation Army, will make a personal visit to some of the larger industries.

Arthur Bair of the Littlestown National bank will serve as the local treasurer. Those wishing to mail in their contributions may send them directly to Mr. Bair or to Mr. Higinbotham.

Recreation Association And Free Library Chest Members

Contributions made to the Gettysburg Recreation association through the community chest have two functions, it was noted today.

Of the $7,500 set aside for the recreation association from the $22,000 sought in the current Community Chest drive, $5,000 goes toward the operation of the recreation system during the year. The remaining $2,500 goes into what are termed "permanent improvements"—the improvements being made year by year to improve the association's facilities. In the course of the years the association hopes that it can provide the finest facilities in the state without too greatly "pinching" the pocketbook of the town during any one year.

The money for permanent improvements during the past few years has gone into the development of the Recreation park located on Breckenridge street. So far most of the money has been spent for the necessary grading, grass planting and other work needed to put the 58-acre property into shape for use.

This year additional improvements will be made and eventually, through the years, landscaping, a swimming pool, tennis courts, improved picnic facilities, improved swings, slides, other equipment for the youngsters, and similar developments will become realities. That is the plan behind the annual donation for permanent improvements.

During the coming year most of the money, and possibly more, if need be, will go into developing toilet facilities at the park. Those facilities, it was decided, are the most pressing need at the time.

The park last summer played host to well over 20,000 visitors. Actual counts of children present for organized play, those present to attend the softball league games and those

Find Burned Bodies Of 9 Americans Near Kujang

By WILLIAM JORDEN
With U.S. 1st Corps, North Korea, Oct. 28 (AP)—The bodies of 30 Americans—nine of them badly burned—have been discovered near Kujang, 30 miles northeast of Anju.

The First Corps judge advocate said today the Americans were found October 22nd in a train which had been attacked by American planes and set afire.

It could not be determined without further medical examinations whether the men had been killed by the air attack. No dead North Koreans were found.

Two American prisoners were found beside the burning railroad train.

Their names were not immediately available.

Information indicated that nine bodies had been burned as a result of the air strike after the Americans had been killed earlier by their fleeing North Korean captors.

CORONER'S JURY CLEARS TRUCKER IN FATAL CRASH

An Adams county coroner's jury sitting in an inquest Friday afternoon at the court house here found that Harry A. Zentz, Thurmont, Md., trucker "did everything possible to prevent the accident" which resulted in the death of Robert Elwood Arndt, 21, 159 North Stratton street, on October 18.

The jury's verdict held that Arndt "came to his death at 3:40 p.m., October 18, at the Warner hospital by means of contusions of the brain, with hemorrhage, and fractured right arm and leg and that said injuries were inflicted and the death of Robert Arndt was caused by the collision of a car driven by Paul A. Walter, in which Arndt was a passenger, with a truck on Route 34 in Cumberland township on October 17, 1950. The jury believes that Mr. Zentz, driver of the truck, did all he could to prevent the accident."

In its verdict the jury did not directly place blame for the crash on the fog bound night of October 17 about a mile north of here at Grandview terrace along the Biglerville road. It did however seek to free Zentz of any blame in connection with the fatal crash.

Hear Five Witnesses
Zentz, State Policeman James A. Treas, Ivan Breighner, Gettysburg; Dr. Roy W. Gifford, associate surgeon at the Warner hospital, and Donald Stambaugh, Thurmont R. D., a passenger in the truck driven by Zentz, were the witnesses to appear before the jury.

When Walter was called to the stand his attorney, Eugene B. Hartman told Dr. C. G. Crist, the county coroner, who conducted the inquest, that "Mr. Walter wishes to take advantage of his right not to testify."

Zentz and Stambaugh told how they were enroute toward Gettysburg from Biglerville when their truck suddenly stopped running. They got out of the cab, planning to place flares, since they could not move the truck from the road. Seeing a car approach they went to the rear of the truck to flag the car down.

Warned Car Driver
Ivan Breighner, driver of the car who was approaching, said he saw someone seeming to be leaping about in the road in front of him in the fog. He said he swerved and then saw the truck which also had been hidden by the fog. He continued toward Gettysburg, saw the ambulance coming out and returned to the scene.

Zentz said he had to leap to escape the Walter car, which approached within a moment after the Breighner car had passed. He said Walter turned toward him, and he leaped out of the road. There was a crash as the car hit the rear of the truck.

Arndt, a passenger in the Walter car, was taken to the Warner hospital. Doctor Gifford told of the treatment given to the local telegrapher on the night of the accident. The next day he continued to lose strength and a Baltimore brain specialist was called in, who operated to relieve pressure caused by the fractured skull. A short time later, on the afternoon of October 18, the young man died.

Skidded 39 Feet
Officer Treas told of damages caused by the accident. He said he was told the hood of the Walter car flew 60 feet through the air to land south of the scene of the accident. The car skidded 39 ft. before hitting the truck. Fog was heavy at the time, he added, stating that visibility was about 60 feet ahead of a car. He gave his opinion of a safe speed under the conditions would have (Continued on Page 8)

Slain In Korea

Sgt. Richard E. Lightner, 29-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel J. Lightner, Wyomissing, and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lightner, Baltimore road, was killed in action in Korea September 2. He served with an infantry regiment in the Second Division.

MART OFFERS PUMPKINS FOR HALLOWEEN

The Farmers market had plenty of pumpkins this morning, some of which will go into pies but a large number into the making of Jack-O-Lanterns for Halloween. Small ones were five cents and larger were ten and 15 cents each.

With earlier fall fruit out of the way, apples reigned as king on the market today. Supplies were plentiful, and the quality good. Varieties were more numerous, and included Stayman Winesap, Grimes Golden, Yellow Delicious, Red Delicious, Winter Rambo, King, Paradise Sweets, York Imperial, Jonathan and Smokehouse. They brought mostly 15 and 20 cents a quart box to $1 and $1.25 per half bushel.

Eggs were 65 and 67 cents a dozen for large whites and browns, the higher price an advance of two cents over last week's top. Mediums were mostly about 55 cents a dozen. Chickens were 35 and 60 cents a pound.

Other Produce

Pork prices were as follows: loin, $1 a pound; backbone, 50 cents a pound; ribs, 50 cents a pound; neck roast, 55 cents a pound; shoulder roast, 65 cents a pound; ham roast, 75 cents a pound; sausage, 60 cents a pound; scrapple, 25 cents a pound; pudding, 50 cents a pound; fresh side meat, 55 cents a pound; lamb, 22 cents a pound; liver, 50 cents a pound.

A few quart boxes of yellow beans sold for 15 cents a box. Endive was ten cents a stalk and lettuce ten cents a box. Grapes were 15 cents a quart box, and pears 20 cents a box and $1.25 a half bushel. Yams and sweet potatoes brought 25 cents a quarter peck and other potatoes $1 a half bushel. Onions were 15 cents a quart box and turnips 15 cents a quart.

Dahlias and poinsettias were from 15 to 35 cents a bunch. Cup cheese was 15 cents; cottage cheese, 20 cents a pint; whipping cream, 35 cents a pint; potato salad, 20 cents a pint; bread, 20 cents a loaf; cookies, 25 cents a dozen; rolls, 20 cents a dozen; pies, 40 and 50 cents and cakes, $1.

COUPLE MARRIED IN NEW JERSEY

Mrs. Elizabeth Pond Burdett, daughter of Mrs. Harry Bradford Pond, Plainfield, N. J., and John Foster Zimmerman, Westfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Zimmerman, 7 Hanover street, were united in marriage last Sunday at 2 p.m. in the Congregational church at Plainfield by the Rev. Francis E. Potter.

Miss Jean Rhoads was the maid of honor and the flower girl was Mary Abigail Burgett. The best man was Frederic H. Rauh, Jr., and the ushers were Robert Vaughan, West Caldwell; Bernard Seget, Linden; William Fickett, Plainfield, and Wallace Sherlock, Chatham.

Mrs. Clifford Durant, Jr., presided at the organ. The church choir sang.

To Live In Westfield

Following a reception the couple left on a two-week wedding trip to Virginia. Upon their return they will reside at 725 East Broad street, Westfield, N. J.

The bride graduated from Colby junior college. She is a member of the Plainfield Music club, the Westfield Music club and the Congregational church choir.

Mr. Zimmerman graduated from Gettysburg high school and Rider college, Trenton. He is a member of the Delta Sigma Pi fraternity.

Red Koreans Slow Invaders With Tanks Near Border

Seoul, Oct. 28 (AP)—Tank-led Red Koreans slowed to a walk today the United Nations juggernaut grinding toward the Manchurian border in north-west Korea.

The Communists were fighting with reborn fury. Reports persisted that their ranks were bolstered by Chinese Reds wearing North Korean uniforms.

On the northeast coast, South Koreans drove into the port of Songjin, 75 miles southeast of the border.

Ambush Yankees
But more than 150 miles to the south, near liberated Wonsan, 4,000 by-passed Korean Reds battled U. S. Marines. They ambushed one Leatherneck company and cut it to pieces.

Heavy and well-organized Red opposition appeared in northwest Korea. A Red convoy of 50 vehicles was reported sighted 12 miles south of the frontier town of Kangye.

A spokesman at General MacArthur's headquarters in Tokyo said intelligence sources could neither confirm nor deny presence of Chinese Communist troops in North Korea. He said the situation was not considered alarming.

Intelligence officers expressed general belief that the "Chinese" would prove to be Manchurian-born Koreans, possibly trained in Chinese armies.

Find Hard Going

American, British Commonwealth and South Korean forces found it hard going in northwest Korea along a 35-mile front extending from Kasan to Onjong—points 45 to 55 miles from the Manchurian frontier.

Far to the north of Onjong, a regiment of the South Korean Sixth Division reached the Yalu river boundary Thursday but had to pull back because the Reds cut its supply road.

The British Commonwealth 27th Brigade, operating just ahead of the U. S. 24th Division's Fifth Regiment, was forced to halt near Kasan. Two miles west of the town, the British came under fire of tank-supported Reds dug in on hills on both sides of the road.

Fifth Air Force fighter-bombers and bazooka teams knocked out 10 Red tanks and two self-propelled guns, a U. S. First Army Corps spokesman reported.

THREE INJURED IN AUTO CRASH FRIDAY EVENING

Three persons were injured at 6:15 o'clock Friday evening when automobiles operated by James A. Oylar, 54, of Gettysburg R. 1, and Ronald L. Kennell, 18, of Gettysburg R. 5, collided on the Baltimore pike near the Teeter stone quarries.

Most seriously injured, according to state police of the Gettysburg station, who investigated the accident, was George Richard Kennell, 17, brother of the driver of one of the cars. He suffered a concussion of the brain and facial lacerations.

Ronald Kennell was treated at the Warner hospital for a laceration of the scalp, and Harry Baker, 65, of Gettysburg R. 1, received treatment for severe facial lacerations. He was riding in the Oylar car. All three were taken to the hospital in the ambulance, police said. The younger Kennell remained as a patient.

Police said Oylar was driving out of a private driveway and Kennell was traveling north on the Baltimore road when the right front parts of each automobile collided. Damage to the Oylar car was estimated at $375 and to the Kennell car at $200.

TO GRANT DIVORCE

Judge W. C. Sheely today handed down an opinion stating that a divorce will be granted to John B. Riddlemoser, McKnightstown, from Margaret B. Riddlemoser, Chambersburg, as soon as an amended complaint in divorce is filed. The court noted that the report of the master proved the charges but added that since certain details had been inadvertently left out of the complaint an amended complaint would have to be filed before the divorce decree could be given.

HEROICS GONE IN WAR TODAY, MARINES FIND

By BEN PRICE
With U. S. First Marines off
Korea, Oct. 24 (Delayed) (P)—
Marine reservists now catching up with this war, have a grim little gripe among themselves.

It goes like this:
"Somebody ought to set up a system for the number of wars a guy has got to fight—say three wars to a man and then he can go home and pick up the pieces of his life."

That leaves one more war per man for most, regulars and reserves alike.
And with grunts of resignation you hear them talking of going to Indo-China.

Indo-China Next
After President Truman promised material aid to the French in Indo-China, and in view of the French defeats, the marines are convinced that they will be in the jungle again shortly.

This is the first time in this war that I have been with the marines. As an ex-marine myself,

I can only sit and compare notes with the marines I knew in World War II.

There are not the 'Gung Ho' or hell-for-leather marines of five years ago. Perhaps they are the deadlier fighters for it.

There is a grim realization that they have a job to do. And that they will do it with all the efficiency possible with the least loss of life to themselves.

War is not a subject of jest anymore.

They are perfectly aware that a man can expect to survive just so many battles. It is in their eyes and in their conversations.

The heroics of the last war are missing.

Perhaps the most moving of all changes is to be found in the ward-room of this ship, the USS Pick-away enroute to a bloodless landing near Wonsan.

No Great Adventure
Under similar circumstances in the last war the conversation inevitably was of girls, girls, girls.
With a little urging the marines would haul out their pictures.

Now the pictures are of wives and children. But no longer are they

NPA CONSIDERS CONTROL PLANS ON WAR METALS

By MAX HALL
Washington, Oct. 27 (AP)—To speed the making of munitions, the government is planning to stem part of the immense flow of aluminum, copper and nickel now going into civilian products.

William H. Harrison, administrator of the National Production Authority, (NPA) told manufacturers yesterday that a tentative plan under consideration calls for a cut of 20 to 30 per cent in the non-military use of the three critical metals.

He didn't say when the plan might be put into effect.

Harrison also served notice that another important metal, cobalt, is so scarce that it may be removed from non-defense use altogether.
Cobalt, similar to nickel, is used as a steel alloy and in electromagnets.

It was not clear just how heavily the proposed metals controls would affect the output of television sets, refrigerators, washing machines, automobiles, bicycles, toys, and other articles which contain aluminum, copper, nickel or cobalt.

This will depend in part on the extent to which a manufacturer can adopt substitutes for those metals.

The NPA said that the cutback program would apply to the metals only in their "primary forms." Each manufacturer using aluminum, copper or nickel would have his supply reduced by a certain percentage below his average consumption during some particular previous period not yet determined.

But each manufacturer could still decide what products to make. And buyers of those products would not be limited to any percentage of their previous purchases.

New Ban In Effect

The NPA said Harrison outlined the tentative plan yesterday before a group of radio and television producers and repeated the performance before manufacturers of consumer durable goods (such as washing machines and refrigerators).

Last night the NPA's ban on

Watermelon Juice Flown To Ill Boy

Dagus Mines, Pa., Oct. 27 (AP)—A four-gallon keg of out-of-season watermelon juice was flying to the bedside of three-year-old Richard Veon today.

Richard is suffering from nephrosis, a serious kidney disease. His physician, Dr. E. Schwangerer, says the boy must have fresh watermelon juice as part of his treatment.

The juice was extracted from melons yesterday at the Lafayette, La., plant of B. F. Trappey and Son.
They said this is the initial test of an experimental canning program launched in an attempt to provide watermelon juice all year around for nephrosis victims.

The keg was shipped to Pittsburgh via Eastern Airlines, will arrive at

Bradford airport in an All American lines plane tonight and complete the final 40 miles of its journey to Richard's bedside by automobile.

bezzling $4,625 from the First National bank of Natick, Mass., also placed Baker on two-year probation. The court was told that Baker, 48, had made full restitution. He was employed by the bank

SENATOR ASKS IF REDS PAY FULL UN SHARE

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)
Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, a member of the American delegation to the United Nations, puts his finger on a warm issue in challenging the inequality of membership dues in the U. N., under which the United States pays more than one-third the entire budget.

"That is a subject which concerns the pocketbook of every citizen—and increasingly so. 'Right now,' said the Senator in a radio broadcast, 'The U. S. pays 40 percent of the U. N. budget, England pays 11 1/2 percent, and Russia pays only 7 percent.'"

Mr. Lodge calls this a "ludicrous position" and he wants to see it changed. He says the original agreement was based on the ability of each country to pay, with war damages taken into account. But he points out that "the Soviet leaders have consistently said they have completely repaired the damages of war in their country" and so, he figures, they should pay a bigger share in the U. N.

Tremendous Cost
This rather spot-lights the recent report in U. N. circles about the huge cost America was likely to have to bear for Korean rehabilitation. The U. S. Delegation was reported to have said Korean relief and rehabilitation would run to about $240,000,000 a year, according to revised estimates. (South Korean authorities put the annual amount at $500,000,000.)

Some delegations are said to be concerned over the size of this figure. They say the program might run three years, and Uncle Sam might have to foot the entire bill. Since Senator Lodge emphasized the Soviet case, with its 7 per cent assessment, let's continue the analysis.

The Soviets have built the world's biggest army—4,000,000 men—and have equipped it with the most modern weapons. They have created a powerful submarine force. They are carrying on costly operations in many satellite countries. And they are waging a "cold" but expensive global war against the democracies.

On that basis it is presumed that Russia could and should pay a larger assessment in the U. N. So should a lot of other members.

County News Of Servicemen

John J. Sneringer, aviation chief machinist's mate, USN, of Orrtanna R. 1, who is now aboard the giant aircraft carrier USS Midway, is becoming well acquainted with the peoples and customs of countries which border the Mediterranean Sea. During the month of September, the Midway visited the ports of Palermo, Sicily; Algiers, Algeria; Cagliari, Sardinia, and Augusta, Sicily.

Other ports in which the carrier has dropped anchor since it began its present cruise include Gibraltar; Athens, Greece; Panagasta, on the Island of Cyprus; Beirut, Lebanon; the Island of Crete, and the French Riviera. While the ship was anchored near Cannes on the French Riviera, some of the Midway's personnel took guided tours to Paris, France, and Switzerland.

3rd Quarter Reports Due State Tuesday

Employers were reminded today that reports and contributions required by the Pennsylvania Unemployment Compensation law for the third quarter of 1950 are due by October 31.

A field representative of the Bureau of Employment and Unemployment Compensation will be at the Pennsylvania State Employment Service office, 20 Baltimore street, on Tuesday, October 31, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. to furnish information, assist employers in preparing their returns and receive reports and contributions.

Harrisburg, Oct. 28 (AP)—Induction of 1,149 draftees from 33 local boards has been held up by state draft headquarters.

Col. Henry M. Cross said the boards may apply the youths held up toward quotas fixed for November. He said the postponement was necessary because many more men had passed their pre-induction physical test than had been expected.

Philadelphia, Oct. 28 (AP)—Cargo for Communist China is being loaded aboard the freighter Flying Cloud here after being cleared by the U. S. Department of Commerce.

Acting Chairman Herbert R. O'Connor (D-Md.) of the Senate Commerce Sub-Committee had charged in Washington Thursday that an American merchant ship—Flying Cloud—was picking up war goods for delivery to the Chinese Reds, and asked customs officials to investigate.

London, Oct. 28 (AP)—William Patterson, executive secretary of the American Civil Rights Congress, who was barred from entering Britain last night, was waiting under guard today for a New York-bound plane.

Neither the British Home office nor airport immigration officials would give a reason for refusing to let Patterson into Britain. Patterson landed at London airport from Paris.

Things Of The Soil

POULTRY COLDS ARE DANGEROUS

Shifting hens from the freedom and health of the summer range to winter quarters brings dangers often overlooked by owners — seasonal colds and a costly train of lock ills likely to follow. Like most other poultry diseases, colds must be prevented; they can rarely be cured. Fortunately a safe precautionary course is neither difficult nor expensive.

Perhaps the most important factor in keeping fall poultry colds at a minimum is to have the house properly ventilated. This is necessary not only to admit fresh air but even more to carry off surplus moisture released in the exhaled breath of birds and from their droppings.

Of course, proper ventilation is closely related to house construction. If the building is single-walled, indoor temperatures will be uncomfortably low during periods of cold weather and will fluctuate widely according to outside temperatures. In this situation ventilation becomes an almost impossible task. Thus, to permit careful and adequate ventilation, the house should be double-walled and insulated. Few other investments in poultry equipment pay bigger dividends than flock comfort induced by proper housing.

But even where the building is comfortably dry, insulated to regulate temperatures, and ventilated to control humidity, poultry may suffer severe inroads of seasonal ills unless the birds are fed a well balanced ration of "protective" feeds, feeds containing the minerals and vitamins essential to protect and promote fall and winter health as well as to stimulate maximum egg production when prices are at the year's peak.

On this point the small flock owner easily and often errs. Giving a hen "all she wants to eat" is not sufficient. But her daily ration must be completely and roundly balanced. In other words, her feed must furnish her the nutrients she needs to build and nourish her body, plus a balance to permit manufacture of eggs. Without such a quantity and quality of feed, she certainly will slow up in her laying, and if the quantity of feed is insufficient or the quality deficient in certain needed elements, her health will suffer. Colds are usually the first nutritional ailment to follow defective feeding.

Therefore, if proper and comfortable housing is furnished, profitable and sound fall and winter feeding calls for a good laying mash containing animal matter, minerals and vitamins, such as any of the reputable manufacturers sell. Rarely can the small flock owner mix his own laying mash properly or economically. Mash should be kept before the hens all the time in sanitary feeders.

The flock weight, as determined by frequent weighing of individual hens, is regulated by grain feeding, furnished in early morning and late afternoon before hens go to roost. The first feeding is to put them to work early; the last to prevent their going to bed with empty crops.

Green feed, preferably lettuce, alfalfa or clover clippings, cabbage or other green leafy vegetables, should be supplied daily. Here is a direct contribution to colds prevention. Too, it boosts many other ways sagging egg production averages. In addition, grit and plenty of fresh water are necessities to stress. But when a random sneeze is heard, the offender should be removed at once from the flock to permit treatment and prevent possible contagion.

RETAIN FAITH DESPITE REDS IN N. KOREA

By BEM PRICE
Hanhung, North Korea, (AP) — It was a bare little church just around the corner from a bombed-out electric plant.

The small building nestled beside the broad concrete highway running from Hanhung to the Sea of Japan. A cross on top marked the building as a place of Christian worship.

Curiosity impelled us to enter—two correspondents and a former Korean law student from Seoul.

We had expected to find it empty; religion rides rough seas in Communist countries. North Korea had had five years of Red rule.

To our amazement, we heard the rich, resonant tones of an organ. Its sonorous notes filled the little room. Then young voices lifted in a hymn.

Our eyes adjusted to the dim light. They took in an ancient pump organ, four bare benches and a pulpit. A young man was seated at the organ. Ten little girls lined the benches. None was more than 12 years old.

The organ music and the singing stopped. The young man looked up, a question in his eyes. The girls looked up, too—and, like little girls everywhere, giggled.

Sing Hymns

Through our Korean friend, we asked them to continue. The music resumed, ever so softly. The organist nodded. The children began singing again. Their young voices rolled it out, clear and strong.

"Rock of Ages, Cleft for me..." Before the hymn was finished, a scuffling intruded from the rear of the church. Through the door came an old man. He extended his hand. The singing stopped. The old man reached into a dilapidated briefcase and drew out a book. He began to read in Korean. Our Seoul friend said the old man was reading from the New Testament.

Another man entered. He went from window to window with a mouthful of nails, tacking in window panes which had been removed to safeguard them during the fighting for Hanhung. Our Seoul friend, San Ku Lee, began talking with the little gathering.

Talks Of Freedom

He talked to them of democracy... of the blessings it could bring to people... freedom from fear... freedom of religion... They listened avidly—the organist, the ragged old man, the little girls. The chilly October sun cast the pattern of a cross on the floor.

Then the two churchmen began talking. Lee translated for us: This had been a Methodist church. During the Red Korean regime, the Communists had banned reading of the Bible. But they had permitted singing. And through the old hymns, like "Rock of Ages," Christianity lived on in the hearts of these Koreans. Its spirit was kindled in the young. After a time we left, refreshed by this testimony of faith under adversity.

We took a last look. In the doorway our new-found friends—the old man, the young organist and the little girls—all waved goodbye. Above them, the white cross gleamed like a beacon in the light of a dying day.

Evicted Roomer Kills Secretary

Atlanta, Oct. 28 (AP)—A pensioned and unemployed war veteran, evicted from the YMCA two years ago, fired five fatal bullets into the general secretary on the "Y" steps yesterday.

The victim was William L. Parker, 60, who had served as "Y" secretary at Minneapolis and Miami in addition to Atlanta.

Police named the slayer as Ellis Hogan, 36, and charged him with suspicion of murder. Police Lt. M. M. Coppenger quoted him as saying that Parker circulated "false rumors" about him and that he was ranked also by refusal of the "Y" to re-admit him as a roomer.

Cleveland, Oct. 28 (AP)—Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., of Akron, O., last night granted a general wage increase of from nine to 11 cents an hour to 22,900 employees in eight cities.

In a contract signed with the CIO United Rubber Workers here, the company also agreed to pay hourly pay boosts of from 1.5 to 2.5 cents to adjust intra-plant inequities.

PLAN DISCUSSION

The Hoover report will be the subject of a roundtable discussion at the Monday evening dinner of the Gettysburg Lions club at the Shetter House at 6 o'clock. Charles R. Wolfe, a member of the club, will serve as chairman of the panel discussion.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 28 (AP) — Twenty-five heroes in 13 states, nine of whom died while performing their acts of bravery, have been awarded bronze medals by the Carnegie Hero Fund commission.

Dr. J. Raymond and Thelma Mae Moore, Washington, D. C., have purchased a 57-acre farm of Orval L. and Betty Ann Senger, located in Mt. Joy township, near Barlow. Possession will be given November 17. The sale was made through C. A. Heiges and Son, Buford avenue.

SCOUT MEETING AT EMMITSBURG

The Emmitsburg Boy Scout troop, Henry Charlton, scout master, and Allen Friday, senior patrol leader, met Friday at 7 o'clock at the fire hall. The troop has organized an inter-patrol "G-man" football league. The first game was played last Saturday between the Flying Eagle and the Owl patrols. The Owls were the victors in this first tilt. The second game is set for today, between the Flaming Arrows and the Beavers. The Scouts are selling Christmas cards and those wishing cards were asked to contact any scout. The troop is almost one year old. Plans for an Anniversary celebration are being made.

The chest x-ray clinic held in Emmitsburg last Wednesday by the Frederick County Tuberculosis association was a greater success than in previous years. Three hundred and ninety x-rays were taken in the community, including the high school and factories. The clinic was sponsored locally by the Lions club and the Chamber of Commerce.

The Mile society of Trinity Methodist church met at the home of Col. and Mrs. Thomas J. Frailey last evening.

Services at the churches Sunday will include: St. Anthony's Shrine, masses at 7:30 and 9:30 a.m.; Elias Lutheran, Sunday school at 9:30 a.m. with Dr. George Miller teaching the men's and women's classes; service at 10:30 a.m. with observance of Reformation Sunday including special music under the direction of Mrs. Reginald Zepp and message by the pastor; the Children's choir will hold a Halloween party in the parish hall tonight 6 to 8 p.m., the choir will hold a food sale in the Emmitsburg fire hall on Saturday, Nov. 4 at 11 a.m.; Town's Creek Methodist, Sunday school 9 a.m.; service with sermon at 10 a.m.; Trinity Methodist, morning worship with sermon 9 a.m.; Sunday school 10 a.m.; The church of the Incarnation Reformed, Sunday school at 10 a.m., service with sermon at 10:45; Presbyterian, Sunday school at 9:45 a.m., Reformation Day service at 7:30 p.m.; St. Joseph's Catholic, masses 7, 8:30 and 10 a.m.

Three Arrested For Burglaries

A wave of entries and petty robberies to Hanover business places during the past four months was believed cleaned up Friday with the apprehension of three youths who were committed to York county jail, without bail, to await a hearing before Justice of the Peace George A. Lippy, Hanover.

They were John H. Farley, 22, of Hanover; R. 2, Melvin L. Hamme, 20, of Brookbeaks R. 1, and James Rorser, 20, of Spring Grove R. 2. Charges of burglary and larceny have been filed against the trio while an additional charge of "carrying a gun without a permit" has been filed against Farley.

They are accused of entering Rudy's Diner, Hanover, on three occasions during June and July where $11.50 in cash and cigars was taken; Marty's Grill, Hanover, in September, where approximately $100 in cash was taken, and the Norman Raubenstine Service station, Hanover, in October where $25 in cash and a quantity of oil was taken.

They also are accused of siphoning gasoline from a truck owned by Hipp and Yingling, Hanover, while the vehicle was parked in Hanover in June and breaking into the Fink-boner and Gallagher service stations in Gettysburg.

State police from York and Gettysburg details and members of the Littlestown and Gettysburg police departments assisted in the investigation.

thousands, the records show. Located on East High street, in the former county jail building, the library is a center for most local residents and countians in search of good literature, or books on special fields of activity. It also is proving a center of information for those who write or call the library for details on particular problems. The librarians look up the texts, find the answers and thus provide an additional service in addition to providing reading material for the county.

The $2,250 to be given by the Community Chest will go toward such things as purchase of new books, renovation of old books, operation of the bookmobile which carries books monthly to school children throughout the county, salaries, light, heat and similar expenses that occur during the year. The need for new books is particularly urgent now.

Children prove the most avid users of the library. About two-thirds of all books distributed by the library go to youngsters.

To keep the library operating, the bookmobile moving through the county and branch libraries and book stations in operation throughout the county requires about $10,000 per year it was noted. Of that amount Gettysburg gives $2,250, the county, through the commissioners $3,500, the borough council $600 and the remainder from other parts of the county.

Trojans Top Warriors 22-6 In Hard Fought League Game

Chambersburg high school's Trojans took a long step toward their second successive South Penn conference championship by upsetting the Gettysburg high Warriors here Friday evening 22-6 in a hard fought game before a disappointingly small crowd of approximately 3,000 fans.

The victory gave the Trojans their 16th straight conference triumph in a string extending since 1948 and their 18th league contest without a setback since Mechanicsburg turned the trick in 1947.

It marked the third defeat as against four victories for the Warriors during their current campaign.

Despite their setback, the local outfit put up a grand game against their heavily favored opponents and bottled up Mike Waters, Trojan ace back, fairly successfully, notwithstanding his break-through the line and 45-yard jaunt for a touchdown late in the second period. Other than that the Trojan ace was satisfactorily halted on most of his attempts.

Fumble Rocks GHS
Coach Howard Shoemaker's outfit got in hot water right at the start. Singley returned the kickoff to his own 22 and on the first play from scrimmage a fumble was recovered by the Trojans on the Gettysburg 20.

The Warriors were equal to the occasion and took the ball on downs on the 11.

Williams booted out to the Gettysburg 43. A pass, Stegner to Waters, picked up a first down on the 22. Two plays produced eight yards for the invaders and then Steger whipped a pass to Teal in the end zone for a score after 6:27 minutes. Anspach booted the extra point via a placement.

Late in the first period the Warriors took possession on their own 36 on a punt and after crashing through the line for a first down on the 46, two passes, Singley to Tonsel, and Singley to Harriel, moved the ball to the Trojans' 39 early in the second period. A holding penalty and a five-yard off-side infraction put the locals deep in their own territory with Williams soon booting to midfield. Several exchanges of punts followed with Chambersburg finally taking over on their own 37 late in the second frame.

Waters Breaks Away
After Shatzer and Steger picked up a first down at midfield Waters, seemingly trapped at the line, broke into the clear and raced for a score. Anspach's placement for the point was blocked.

Midway in the third period, following an exchange of punts, Gettysburg took over on its own 11. On a lateral, Tonsel was dropped behind the Gettysburg goal line for a Chambersburg safety to hike the Trojans' margin to 15-0 after 6:55 of the period.

Just a little more than a minute of play had elapsed in the final period when Red Walter, Trojan end, snared a Warrior pass and streaked 15 yards for a TD. Anspach booted the point on a placement.

A recovered fumble by Altland, guard, on the Trojans' 47, opened the way for the lone Gettysburg touchdown in the fading minutes of the game.

Harriel Snared TD Pass
After picking up a first down on the 37 on running plays by Tonsel and Singley, the Warriors got a lift when Chambersburg was setback 15 yards for unsportsmanlike conduct to the 22-yard line.

Fiscel whipped a pass to Harriel that was good for but two yards. Another pass was incomplete. Fiscel then lateralled to Singley who whipped a pass to Harriel in the end zone for the six-pointer. A bad pass from center eliminated an attempted kick by Davis for the point.

After kickoff to Chambersburg the Shoemaker-lads secured possession when Singley intercepted a pass and returned to the Trojan 25 but a pass was grounded on the next play as the game ended.

Chambersburg outgained the locals' seven first downs to six, one of the Warriors' first downs coming on a penalty.

Bands Perform Well
The bands from both schools put on fine exhibitions for the crowd. Edwin Longanecker's local outfit gave a special Halloween performance prior to the game, complete with witches, ghosts, scarecrows and cornstalks, "worn" by the band members.

At half time the big Chambersburg band put on a snappy revue in presenting the "Evolution of Transportation" and went through their formations with military-like precision.

The lineups:

PRO GRID LEADS ARE AT STAKE

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)—First place in both the American and National conferences will be at stake in National Football league games tomorrow.

The tastiest dish on the agenda will be a battle between the New York Yanks and the Chicago Bears at the Yankee stadium, where some 50,000 fans are expected. The Yanks, with a five won, one lost record, currently lead the National conference, while the Bears are second with a 4-1 mark.

In the American conference, the New York Giants will go after their fifth triumph in six starts in a game at Chicago with the fourth-place Cardinals. And the Philadelphia Eagles, tied with the Giants for the lead, will play host to the Washington Redskins.

Other contests scheduled are Detroit at Los Angeles, Pittsburgh at Cleveland and Baltimore at San Francisco.

Johnny Lujack of the Bears and George Ratterman of the Yanks, whose quarterback rivalry dates back to their days with Notre Dame, are expected to produce the main fireworks at Yankee stadium.

State Has Enough Minors For Draft
Harrisburg, Oct. 28 (AP)—World War II veterans and married men facing the possibility of being drafted if the current supply of eligible men runs out need not worry, says Pennsylvania's draft director.

"If the monthly draft calls for Pennsylvania continue to run under 3,000, as for December, local boards will be able to meet their quotas with young men just turning age," Lt. Col. Henry M. Gross said yesterday.

Gross explained that 7,000 Pennsylvania youths reach their 19th birthday each month. At present, selective service is taking only unmarried men between 19 and 25.

State draft headquarters yesterday sent out induction quotas totaling 1,269 more men for the November draft. The quotas call for induction on Nov. 8, Pennsylvania's November draft quota is 4,762 men.

NATO Must Face Facts, Says Marshall

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Marshall appeared today to the defense ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) to be "realistic in the appreciation of the present critical situation as they shape the combined force for defense against communism."

"We must face facts without prejudice," Marshall said in an address prepared for the opening of the NATO defense committee session, a meeting at which the French refused to accept a proposal for formation of West German army units as part of the integrated force as due for a thorough going over.

However, Marshall made no direct reference to that problem in the text of his formal welcoming address.

He offered some sober words of warning about what can happen if the North Atlantic nations let down their efforts to build strong defenses against communism. "We must not sink into complacency or over-confidence, for the struggle may have only begun," he said.

TEACHER TESTS DEMAND FOR PAY

Lancaster, Pa., Oct. 28 (AP)—A. Todd Coronway, a mathematics teacher, says he doesn't like it but has collected letters today as usual for the Lancaster High School Faculty of state with Sharon Hill.

Coronway, a Lancaster high instructor for 21 years, had such a reputation to prevent the 1,000-voice school from turning him to collect letters without extra pay.

President Dwight D. Eisenhower of the Delaware County court at Media today delivered a ruling on the injunction.

Robert A. Marshall, attorney for the school board, told the judge Coronway had a remedy in the state court code. Marshall said if a teacher has a dispute he can compel it to the school board, get a hearing and, if he isn't satisfied with the decision, appeal to the State Board of Education. He can even appeal the State Board's decision to the courts, the attorney said.

"I agree," Judge Evin said. "The school board has set up a remedy in the state code to determine whether or not an employed should be discharged."

Evin gave Coronway's attorney until next Wednesday to file a brief on whether his client has a remedy in law under the school code. Coronway said in his suit he has been threatened with dismissal for "willful disobedience" if he persists in his request for $2.50 an hour to collect letters.

The Delaware County Teachers' council informed him it is in sympathy with his injunction move and offers financial aid if needed.

TOM LOMBARDO KILLED IN KOREA

St. Louis, Oct. 28 (AP)—Lt. Tom Lombardo, captain of Army's 1944 national collegiate championship football team, has been killed in action in Korea.

His death occurred on September 24, but the news did not reach his family from Washington until last night. No details were immediately available.

Lombardo first played on the 1942 Army team, which switched from the single wing to T-formation. He was a quarterback and reached his peak in 1944 when he directed the famous Glenn Davis and Doc Blanchard on plays that led Army to nine straight one-sided victories. The 59-0 route of Notre Dame stunned grid fans throughout the world. Many at first refused to believe it.

Lombardo is the second famous athlete to die in the Korean war. On August 13, the Army's 1950 heavyweight boxing champion—Cpl. Levi Jackson, Jr., of Philadelphia—was killed near Haman in an attempt to rescue two wounded men.

College Booters Defeat Bucknell

A penalty kick by Jerry Royals as the game ended gave the Gettysburg college soccer team a 4-3 victory over Bucknell in a Middle Atlantic conference game Friday afternoon at Lewisburg. The Bisons have been the district champions for three years.

The victory marked the third against four defeats for the Bisons. Next Friday Franklin and Marshall will be met here.

POLITICS AT-A-GLANCE

(By The Associated Press)
U. S. Sen. Edward Martin at Washington, Pa., called for the election of the Pennsylvania Republican ticket, declaring that "political parties are bigger than any individual."

Richardson Dilworth touring Montgomery county charged that the state administration added 1,000 employees since the primary election and said the payroll now stands "at an all-time high of 68,000."

John S. Fine said at Easton that he is winning the support of Democrats everywhere who were "putting the welfare of the state and country first, and partisanship second."

Also at Easton, Gov. James H. Duff said the United States must "cut out all this unnecessary spending on experiments and build up our military power so this country and western Europe can't be run over by Red Russia."

U. S. Sen. Francis J. Myers, touring Delaware county, said Duff "poses as a great liberal but operates with the same old local machines he stole from the old guard."

State Welfare Secretary William C. Brown said in a statement at Harrisburg that Myers "falsely attempted" to assume credit for obtaining a $260,806 federal-aid allocation for the Altoona hospital.

State Has Enough Minors For Draft

Harrisburg, Oct. 28 (AP)—World War II veterans and married men facing the possibility of being drafted if the current supply of eligible men runs out need not worry, says Pennsylvania's draft director.

"If the monthly draft calls for Pennsylvania continue to run under 3,000, as for December, local boards will be able to meet their quotas with young men just turning age," Lt. Col. Henry M. Gross said yesterday.

Gross explained that 7,000 Pennsylvania youths reach their 19th birthday each month. At present, selective service is taking only unmarried men between 19 and 25.

State draft headquarters yesterday sent out induction quotas totaling 1,269 more men for the November draft. The quotas call for induction on Nov. 8, Pennsylvania's November draft quota is 4,762 men.

Sports In Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Football

St. Louis — Lt. Tom Lombardo, captain of 1944 Army football team which crushed Notre Dame, 59-0, was killed in action in Korea.

Boxing

New York — Rocky Graziano, 158½, won a close but unanimous 10 round decision over Tony Janiro, 153½, at Madison Square Garden.

Tennis

Washington — Mrs. Pauline Betz Addie easily defeated Gussy Moran, 6-1, 6-2, for a second straight victory in their pro tennis tour. Pancho Seguro again beat Jack Kramer, 6-1, 5-7, 8-6.

Basketball

Chicago — Minneapolis Lakers won their third straight All-Star game, 61-54, from collegian stars before 19,219 at Chicago stadium.

Racing

Camden, N. J. — Joe Culmone rode four winners at Garden State park, including Whirling Dough ($6.80) in the featured Bordentown purse. Jockey Willie Passmore was hospitalized for observation after falling from Christie C. in the third race.

RICKEY STATUS ANYONE'S GUESS

Pittsburgh, Oct. 28 (AP)—Branch Rickey, the man who began looking around for new employment in earnest today, may join the Pittsburgh Pirates—but he won't get the general manager's job.

That's the promise of Rickey himself and a couple of high Buc officials.

But the most persistent reports still claim the popular baseball executive is on his way to the steel city.

Rickey denied rumors he will become the Pirates' new general manager. But he has not flatly denied he'll join the Bucs as assistant to president John Galbreath or in still another capacity.

On that subject Rickey says only: "I will not discuss my future plans with anyone at this time."

The former president and general manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, whose tenure at Ebbets field expired last night, has several other irons in the fire.

He has arranged a conference Monday with St. Louis Browns president Bill Dewitt. Said Dewitt last night:

"I received a telegram from Mr. Rickey and he said he would like to see me during his visit to St. Louis. I called him long distance. He said that he would probably arrive here Sunday night and would call me then to arrange a definite time for our meeting Monday."

Dewitt denied rumors that Rickey is buying into the Browns. Rickey has said he isn't interested in such a deal.

Rickey also said he plans to see owner Fred Saigh of the St. Louis Cardinals, but not on business.

There is even speculation the 69-year-old baseball figure will become the president of DePauw university at Greencastle, Ind.

But the Rickey-to-Pittsburgh talk is the easiest to listen to. And many folks, including top Pirate personnel, are assuming it to be correct.

SENATOR ASKS IF REDS PAY FULL UN SHARE

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)
Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, a member of the American delegation to the United Nations, puts his finger on a warm issue in challenging the inequality of membership dues in the U. N., under which the United States pays more than one-third the entire budget.

"That is a subject which concerns the pocketbook of every citizen—and increasingly so. 'Right now,' said the Senator in a radio broadcast, 'The U. S. pays 40 percent of the U. N. budget, England pays 11 1/2 percent, and Russia pays only 7 percent.'"

Mr. Lodge calls this a "ludicrous position" and he wants to see it changed. He says the original agreement was based on the ability of each country to pay, with war damages taken into account. But he points out that "the Soviet leaders have consistently said they have completely repaired the damages of war in their country" and so, he figures, they should pay a bigger share in the U. N.

Tremendous Cost
This rather spot-lights the recent report in U. N. circles about the huge cost America was likely to have to bear for Korean rehabilitation. The U. S. Delegation was reported to have said Korean relief and rehabilitation would run to about $240,000,000 a year, according to revised estimates. (South Korean authorities put the annual amount at $500,000,000.)

Some delegations are said to be concerned over the size of this figure. They say the program might run three years, and Uncle Sam might have to foot the entire bill. Since Senator Lodge emphasized the Soviet case, with its 7 per cent assessment, let's continue the analysis.

The Soviets have built the world's biggest army—4,000,000 men—and have equipped it with the most modern weapons. They have created a powerful submarine force. They are carrying on costly operations in many satellite countries. And they are waging a "cold" but expensive global war against the democracies.

On that basis it is presumed that Russia could and should pay a larger assessment in the U. N. So should a lot of other members.

RETAIN FAITH DESPITE REDS IN N. KOREA

By BEN PRICE
Hanhung, North Korea, (AP) — It was a bare little church just around the corner from a bombed-out electric plant.

The small building nestled beside the broad concrete highway running from Hanhung to the Sea of Japan. A cross on top marked the building as a place of Christian worship.

Curious, impelled us to enter—two correspondents and a former Korean law student from Seoul.

We had expected to find it empty; religion hides rough seas in Communist countries. North Korea had had five years of Red rule.

To our amazement, we heard the rich, resonant tones of an organ. Its sonorous notes filled the little room. Then young voices lifted in a hymn.

Our eyes adjusted to the dim light. They took in an ancient pump organ, four bare benches and a pulpit. A young man was seated at the organ. Ten little girls lined the benches. None was more than 12 years old.

The organ music and the singing stopped. The young man looked up, a question in his eyes. The girls looked up, too—and, like little girls everywhere, giggled.

Sing Hymns

Though our Korean friend, we asked them to continue. The music resumed, ever so softly. The organist nodded. The children began singing again. There was no making the hymn. Their young voices rolled in out clear and strong.

"Rock of Ages, Cleft for me Before the hymn was finished, a scuffling intruded from the rear of the church. Through the door came an old man. He extended his hand. The singing stopped. The old man reached into a dilapidated briefcase and drew out a book. He began to read in Korean. Our Seoul friend said the old man was reading from the New Testament.

Another man entered. He went from window to window with a mouthful of nails, tacking in window panes which had been removed to safeguard them during the fighting for Hanhung. Our Seoul friend, San Ku Lee, began talking with the little gathering.

Talks Of Freedom

He talked to them of democracy . . . of the blessings it could bring to people . . . freedom from fear . . . freedom of religion . . . They listened avidly—the organist, the ragged old man, the little girls. The chilly October sun cast the pattern of a cross on the floor.

Then the two churchmen began talking. Lee translated for us. This had been a Methodist church during the Red Korean regime, the Communists had banned reading of the Bible. But they had permitted singing. And through the old hymns, like "Rock of Ages," Christianity lived on in the hearts of these Koreans. Its spirit was kindled in the young. After a time we left, refreshed by this testimony of faith under adversity.

We took a last look in the doorway our new-found friends—the old man, the young organist and the little girls—all waved goodbye. Above them, the white cross gleamed like a beacon in the light of a dying day.

Evicted Roomer Kills Secretary

Atlanta, Oct. 28 (AP)—A pensioned and unemployed war veteran, evicted from the YMCA two years ago, fired five fatal bullets into the general secretary of the "Y" steps yesterday.

The victim was William L. Parker, 60, who had served as "Y" secretary at Minneapolis and Miami in addition to Atlanta.

Police named the slayer as Ellis Hixon, 36, and charged him with suspicion of murder. Police Lt. M. M. Coughner quoted him as saying that Parker circulated "false rumors" about him and that he was "ranked" as by refusal of the "Y" to re-admit him as a roomer.

It also is proving a center of information for those who write or call the library for details on particular problems. The librarians look up the texts, find the answers and thus provide an additional service in addition to providing reading material for the county. The $2,250 to be given by the Community Chest will go toward such things as purchase of new books, renovation of old books, operation of the bookmobile which carries books monthly to school children throughout the county, salaries, light, heat and similar expenses that occur during the year. The need for new books is particularly urgent now. Children prove the most avid users of the library. About two-thirds of all books distributed by the library go to youngsters. To keep the library operating, the bookmobile moving through the county and branch libraries and book stations in operation throughout the county requires about $10,000 per year it was noted. Of that amount Gettysburg gives $2,250, the county, through the commissioners $3,500, the borough council $600 and the remainder from other parts of the county.

Local Surgeon Honored: Dr. Bruce N. Wolff, of Gettysburg, was among the 14 Pennsylvanians initiated into the American College of Surgeons at its annual meeting that opened in Chicago on Monday. Doctor Wolff, Warner hospital surgeon, attended the Chicago sessions.

Grid Receipts Show Big Gain During Season: At a meeting of the Gettysburg high school Athletic council Monday at the high school building it was revealed that there is a balance of $880.17 in the athletic treasury as compared to but $14.47 on September 5.

The entire cost of the installation of the lighting equipment has been paid and only the paying of the notes remain.

Five Gettysburg Youths Enlist in Governor's Troop: Five Gettysburg young men enlisted Tuesday evening at Harrisburg as members of the Governor's Troop, 104th Cavalry, Troop C, Pennsylvania National Guard. They took their oaths and will report weekly for drill and training until early January when the National Guard is expected to be ordered on active duty for one year.

The enlistments are John Crouse, Jack Berzer, Edward L. Shields, Theodore Keefer and James Tate.

Roger Myers: Mrs. Joseph Kreitz, Emmitsburg, has announced the marriage of her sister, Miss Gertrude Myers, and Herbert W. Roger, Emmitsburg. The wedding took place on July 23, at Alexandria, Virginia, in St. Mary's Catholic church. The Rev. Fr. Joseph Leotch, the pastor, officiated.

Young Republicans Arrange Dance: Final plans for a Halloween dance to be presented by the Young Republicans Wilkie and McNary club of Adams county were drawn up at special meeting of the group held at the county Republican headquarters on Chambersburg street Thursday night. Honor guests at the dance will include Candidates C. Luther Baltzley and Paul Crider. The affair will be held in the Hotel Gettysburg annex Friday, November 1.

The orchestra committee is composed of Donald McC. Swope, Esq., Fred Pfeffer, Marie Butler, Esq., Richard Mumma, Mrs. Anna Bracey, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Baker.

Betty Paxton Lauver, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Abell, Verna Culp and Elizabeth Ridinger are on the decorations committee.

Della Mae Shields Becomes Bride: of Marshal Walters: Miss Della Mae Shields, daughter of former Adams County Treasurer and Mrs. William I. Shields, became the bride of Marshall T. Walters, son of Mrs. Maude Walters, Biglerville, Friday evening, in the Arendtsville Lutheran church. The single ring ceremony was performed by candlelight by the Rev. George H. Berkhimer. Members of the families and close friends witnessed the marriage.

Mr. Walters is employed by the firm of Rice, Trew and Rice, Biglerville.

Members of 1890 Team Honored at Dinner: Seventy persons gathered at a dinner in Hotel Gettysburg Friday evening to honor the football team of 1890 at its fiftieth anniversary.

Four members of the team were present. They were G. W. Boyer, C. E. Filbert, The Rev. J. C. Nickolas and the Rev. Stanley Billheimer. George R. Hummel was toastmaster for the dinner.

Speakers were Walter P. Oleson, C. L. S. Raby, Martin Levens, Clarence E. Keys, Henry T. Bream and Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson.

Nary-Deaner: Miss Sara R. Deaner, daughter of Conrad W. Deaner, of Gettysburg and C. William Nary, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Nary, of Orlanna, were united in marriage at Grace Lutheran parsonage, Westminster, Maryland, on Saturday, October 12. The Rev. Dr. Paul W. Quay performed the ceremony. The bridegroom is associated

Today's Talk

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

"BACKWARD, TURN BACKWARD"

In the poem by Elizabeth Akers Allen entitled "Rock Me to Sleep," the first two lines are:

"Backward, turn backward, O Time, in your flight,
Make me a child again, just for tonight."

These lines came to me after a summer vacation in the quiet of pines, hemlocks, rocky shores, mossy paths and the serenity of surrounding water. They also made me return in memory to the beauty of the countryside, and to the farm where I worked as a boy, and heard the whistling of the night hawk, the kilder, and the night calls from the frogs in the pond.

Back in the city, with its heavy traffic and congestion, and its continual noises, those lines by Mrs. Allen kept ringing in my ears. In my memory, I returned to the plough, heard the neighing of the horses, the mooing of the cows, and the early cackling of the hens. And I could feel the dew upon my bare feet at early dawn, and get the smell of hay and grain in the barns.

The fragrance of the good earth, that is all about one in the wide open spaces, is something with which no city dweller is acquainted. Only occasionally does he ever glimpse an early sunrise, or the glory of a celestial sunset. Nature's songs are alien to him. He is a stranger to the quiet and peace of the night. How many of us would like to return to the joy of those days on the farm, or the little town, where neighbors are friends, and where there is a community of thought and interest!

When I note the increasing number of great apartment houses—hundreds of feet in the air, and housing thousands of people in our large cities, I think such homes lose so much, in contrast to those with all nature wrapping them in its arms! I believe there are thousands like myself who have migrated to the city, who never lose that nostalgic feel for the days of youth on the farm or in the small town.

What multitudes have come from the environment of these farms and small places, taking their places in the cities later as leaders and builders, inspired by those early memories and experiences!

IKE'S FUTURE AFFECTED BY N.A. DEFENSE OFFICE

Washington, Oct. 28 (AP)—The possibility that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower may be called to command the North Atlantic Defense forces cast some new doubt today about his political future.

Eisenhower arrived last night for scheduled talks today with President Truman and Secretary of the Army Pace. Many in Washington think these may be preliminary to the general's selection to head the western European military defense setup. The tacit understanding has been that if Eisenhower accepts such an assignment, he will agree to don his uniform again for only a year to get the defense forces organized. That could leave the way open for a return to civilian pursuits, such as his presidency of Columbia university, in the Presidential-picking year of 1952.

He'll Do As He's Told
But Eisenhower told reporters in Charleston, W. Va., yesterday that he, as a soldier, "will do as I am told to do."

Eisenhower has made several disavowals of his suggested candidacy but nowhere has he said flatly that he would not accept a major party nomination in 1952 if it were offered to him.

Recently when Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York said that if he is re-elected he will try to swing the New York state delegation to Eisenhower at the next Republican national convention, the general politely refrained from slamming the door on such a possibility. He reiterated that his present post gave him ample opportunity for public service but he didn't ask the Governor not to back him at the convention.

No Political Damage
Eisenhower has made it plain in the past that he doesn't think an active military man ought to become a candidate for President. With that in mind, his friends generally believe he would quash any nomination move if he takes the North Atlantic post and finds his job there still unfinished in 1952.

But these same friends speculate that if the early months of that year find Eisenhower busy in civilian life he can be approached about running for President. Barring unforeseen developments, a year as North Atlantic commander couldn't do Eisenhower any political harm.

New Oxford

New Oxford—The statues have been obtained for the grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes, built during the spring and summer at the Catholic Cemetery east of town by volunteer labor of Catholic men of the area. There are to be two pure white statues in the niches hallowed in the grotto, to represent the scene of the apparition of the Blessed Virgin Mary in the cave at Lourdes, to Bernadette Soubirous, a fourteen-year-old French peasant girl, in 1854, while Bernadette, now a canonized saint in the Catholic church, had paused at the grotto to kneel in prayer.

The RANGE DOCTOR

by OSCAR J. FRIEND

Chapter 20

Logan stood beside the bed for a long time without moving. Then he sighed, closed the dead man's eyes and folded his arms.

"Doctor!" he murmured bitterly. "Doctor! How little a doctor can really do."

He went to his room, found no trace of Griggsby or word from him. Down in the lobby he left notification of Nichols' death and sent word to the undertaker.

Matlock, he learned, was still abed. So was Overstreet. Getting one of his horses, he rode by Judge Steele's house where he found the family at breakfast. They invited him to join them, but he wasn't hungry.

"I just wanted to ask about Matlock, Judge," he said. "What has he done about the stage robbery?"

The judge snorted. "You know Matlock. He went out with Tom to the hold-up spot yesterday and came back with the shattered remains of the express box and told me the band had fled to the south."

"He didn't form a posse and go after them?"

"He hasn't gone anywhere. I suppose he figures the outlaws will ride north in the spring, and he can arrest them then."

Logan did not smile at this bitter irony. "Where's Uncle Tom?" he asked next.

The judge shook his head. "Haven't seen him since yesterday afternoon."

"Bob," Mollie asked anxiously, "how is Frank Nichols?"

"He died an hour ago," Logan said. "He didn't wait to see how they took this news. Leaving the house, he mounted his horse and rode out of town, instinctively heading north towards Jess Plum's place. He was filled with unrest. The Range Doctor was stirring in his grave. But where was Griggsby?"

Sunday evening Griggsby had a talk with Jack Overstreet.

"What do you make of this mess, Jack?"

Overstreet was sitting at ease on his divan, a tapering wine glass held on the point of his crossed knees. He stared moodily at the high lights in the amber liquid. Then his dark eyes flashed angrily.

"The shooting of the stage driver was a stupid act," he said. "I guess there's no doubt Holcomb was the man."

"Sure, but I meant whether or not John Naylor is mixed up in the business. Whether Frijole Flats is headquarters for this gang of bandits."

"Frijole Flats?" Overstreet was sharply surprised.

Griggsby told him about Nolly Sims and his sister's message. Overstreet nodded slowly.

"Your hunch might be right," he said. "Do you want to call the committee together and raid Frijole Flats?"

"No. We can't do that without more positive proof. I might be wrong. Here's what I think I'll do. I'm going to Frijole Flats, myself and look around. I may have a showdown with Naylor."

"Very well," Overstreet agreed. "I'll go with you."

"Not this time," Jack. Griggsby declined. "You wouldn't be safe from Naylor, anyway. Besides, with Henry away and me out of town, somebody's got to be on hand to take active control of the committee if need be. That Steele can't handle things because of his heart. So you're elected."

Overstreet shrugged and took a sip of his wine. "When do you intend to go?"

"First thing tomorrow. I reckon I'll be back before night, but you'll be here to take charge of things if I'm not. Don't tell anybody where I've gone, particularly Bob. I don't want him running into the mess."

"I don't like this," Overstreet objected frankly. "I think—"

He broke off as there sounded a discreet knock at the door.

"Yes?" he called.

The huge Cajun entered the chamber on noiseless feet. He bore a tray containing Overstreet's late supper which he placed on a small table near the divan.

"Good evening, Mr. Griggsby," he said pleasantly. "I didn't know you were here. May I prepare a salad and some sandwiches for you?"

"No, thanks, Pierre," the editor declined. "I'm leaving right away. You might let me out. How about it, Jack? Obeying my orders?"

"You're the doctor," Overstreet conceded reluctantly.

Then they both looked startled at each other, at his chance choice of words. They smiled wordlessly, tight-lipped poker smiles. Without further speech Griggsby limped to the alley entrance, and the immobile Pierre silently opened the door for him.

It was still gray dawn when Griggsby, muffled up against the chilly wind like a grizzled old bear on the prowl, rode out of town.

A movement down the trail against the sun caught the editor's eye, and he sat quietly as the giant figure of Pierre d'Auberg came swinging along like a pacing horse. Clad in tweeds and a turtle-neck sweater, carrying a heavy walking-stick as lightly as a malacca cane, the huge Cajun halted in surprise.

"Good morning, Mr. Griggsby," he boomed in tones never heard at the Texas Tommy. "Aren't you out exceptionally early, sir?"

"So are you."

"Early but not exceptional. I al-

FLYING SAUCER STIRS TOWN; HOW TO DO IT

(Editors Note: The following story was submitted to the Associated Press with a note that said: "Don't think I'm nuts. I just got fed up with people reporting flying saucers. I made one. It worked fine. We let it go on Friday, a payday when Main street was crowded with shoppers. It seemed as though every telephone in town went action.")

By PETE STEVENSON

(Lock Haven Express Staff Writer)

Lock Haven, Pa., Oct. 28 (AP)—

This flying saucer business is nothing to get excited about.

It's easy as pie to build one. It's not much harder to make it fly. There is nothing mysterious about it. Any boy who builds model planes can put a flyable saucer together in a couple of hours.

It took a little invention on the part of the "flying saucer department" of the Lock Haven, Pa., express but on a recent afternoon a saucer flew over central Pennsylvania. It caused quite a stir and traffic was snarled on Main street. Here's how it's done:

What You Need

Go to a shop where model planes are sold. Buy a dozen or so four foot lengths of quarter-inch balsa wood strips. Pick up a few tubes of airplane cement. At a grocery store purchase two or three rolls of aluminum foil. Get a ball of kite string at the dime store—and a box of balloons.

Before setting to work order a tank of Helium. Most wholesale supply houses carry it. Then follow these instructions and you'll have a flying saucer.

Lay out a circle of balsa strips on the carpet. Secure the ends together with string and cement. Now reinforce the circle with a couple of cross sections of balsa. Repeat the process and you have the top and bottom of your saucer.

Cover the circle frameworks with aluminum foil. Use cellophane tape to secure the seams. Then fill the balloons with helium, placing them between the two circles like the meat in a sandwich. You'll need someone to hold down the top side or it will lift to the ceiling.

Pick A Sunny Day

Don't make the circle larger than the front door or you won't be able to get it outside. Keep the balloons inside the two circular sides by lashing the top and bottom together with string.

You are now ready to go into the flying saucer business. Get your friends to help carry the framework outside. You will find it has a strong urge to rise because of the balloons. Be sure you pick a sunny day. You want that aluminum foil to glisten. They say that's what a saucer does. Make sure there are no trees or telephone wires nearby then let her go and it will rise into the sky. Once the homemade disc is up a hundred feet or so and moves with the wind, you can't tell the difference from a genuine article.

This should settle the flying saucer problem for all time, don't you think?

Two heads are better than one, but not in the same car.

Jabbing Time Again

We're speeding toward the time of year when all the old tricks for better starting will come into the picture again. Simplest of these is pumping once or twice on the accelerator pedal before cranking. The rule now is to try to get started without this aid. But if the motor then shows an inclination to be reluctant you'll know the time has arrived for giving the accelerator that pre-start jab which brings the carburetor's acceleration pump into action. A slug of raw gasoline is then injected into the carburetor throat, this fuel being quickly drawn into the intake manifold and cylinders. Avoiding the need for this saves carbon, prevents overloading during the starting period and lessens the risk of having oil washed off the cylinder walls. In other words, if you can get a start without this accelerator pedal aid so much the better.

May Be Kingpin

Just been looking over a magazine in which a motorist is shown to be trying to check for front wheel bearing looseness by shaking one of the front wheels. I suspect he is noticing worn king pins or bushings. The way to tell, with knee action cars, is to insert a wooden wedge between the steering knuckle and the support. On cars without knee action the wedge should be inserted between the steering knuckle and the axle. If there still is shake there's looseness in the wheel itself.

Speaking Of Plugs

If the engine tends to miss when the car is being pushed on an upgrade the chances are that the points of one or two of the plugs have eaten away. Slow drivers need to use hotter spark plugs, otherwise there will be tendency for plug points to foul. If the car is equipped with plugs that are set at a wider gap—.040 inch the ignition coil must be in top form.

With colder weather on the way it is a good idea to have some conception of the drain of various electrical accessories on the car. Sealed beam headlights, for instance, draw about 12 amperes which is why so many motorist who have converted their lighting systems on older cars have run into battery trouble. The hot water heater will draw 7 amperes. The radio draws 7.5 amperes, while even the ignition system adds 2 amperes to the general load. In winter starting the cranking process will draw anywhere from 250 to 500 amperes.

Mechanic Joe Speaking

"How the gap of a spark plug affects the engine's running is always an interesting topic, and I am surprised that so few owners know why a too narrow gap will cause missing during idling. Just to refresh the falling memory let me state that this is due to the fact that a small quantity of fuel and low compression combine to make a too narrow gap produce a plug miss.

"If the gap is too wide the plug will miss under load when compression is high and the resistance of the plug gap increases."

Keep On Checking

To those who have noticed heel and toe wear on the right front tire and who have switched the right front tire to the left front wheel, I want to warn against assuming that everything will be all right from there on. By all means watch both of the front tires carefully to see if one or both are showing any signs of spotty or abnormal wear. It may be that the front end needs a careful alignment check. What happens to the tires from here on will tell the story if you read it in the trends.

Waxing Made Easier

This is not, as you might suppose, a formula for waxing the car by push button. There are some speedy waxes now available, but I am going to be old-fashioned enough to pass along a few tips on how to make the usual paste wax job a bit easier and more effective.

First of all it is important that the car be clean and brightly polished before any wax is applied. You may need to use tar remover before

Featuring the new Merc-O-Matic automatic transmission, the 1951 Mercury combines many styling and engineering changes. The Merc-O-Matic, developed by Ford Motor Company engineers, is a combination of a torque converter and three-speed transmission which results in a smoothly operating, pleasantly performing drive. New rear fenders and quarter panels, a new grille and front end trim, new bumpers and an extra-large rear window give the 1951 Mercury an ultra-smart appearance. Added smoothness, quietness and an increase in horsepower are present in the improved 112 hp V-8 Mercury engine. New colors and interior trims add to the distinctiveness of the 1951 Mercury. Shown here is the four-door sport sedan.

polishing. Select a clear, dry day for this, but don't do the job in the sun.

Next apply the wax with a soft damp cloth. Try to apply it evenly over an area of about three square feet. Rub with a clean, soft cloth, and follow with another cloth. In fact, have several of these cloths and hang them in the sun to keep dry while rotating them. It isn't necessary to rub hard, but rub quickly so as to create friction and thus dry the wax to a hard finish. You can use some cornstarch on the cloth if drying is difficult.

He Knows Better Now

So the ignition coil doesn't need any attention? That's what a reader of these comments believed until the engine went dead one day when he was trying to overtake another car on a hill. He forgot that the coil on his car is mounted on the engine and that because of the latter's shaking the high tension wire came loose. It is efficient to have the coil as near the distributor as possible, but there was something to be said for the old idea of having the coil securely and comfortably mounted on the firewall. Here it also absorbed less heat. Regardless of the coil's position, however, it still remains that the kindest thing any owner can do to the coil is to keep it clean. This serves to prevent external shorting which moisture will cause if there is enough dirt on the coil to hold it.

This Interesting Field

Observers are talking about those little tire valves. When all tubes were natural rubber and there was more leakage of air through porosity most motorists stopped at the free air pump about once a week to add air. This kept the little tire valves working and made it less likely that their rubber parts would become dry and hard. Today's synthetic tires require so much less pressure checking it is found that the valves may leak after a long period of not being unseated by ingoing air. So check for leakage after going a long time without checking pressure or introducing air. The rubber of the valves can be softened by dunking in hydraulic brake fluid. They are inexpensive, however, and easy to replace. But have the tire and wheel jacked up when replacing a valve as it will injure the tube to inflate with a flat tire carrying the car's weight.

In the Motor Mail

Q. Would you advise changing the timing gears in my car. Have nearly 75,000 miles on the odometer, but plan to drive the car only a few more months.—J. L. McB.

A. If the gears needed changing they would be noisy.

Q. Since installing sealed beam headlights, I notice that the fuse block gets very hot. Larger fuses have not helped.—H. K.

A. What you need for this job are relays. With these in the system the regular lighting system merely carries enough current to close the relays. The lights draw directly from the hot post of the starter-motor.

Q. Would you suggest waxing leather upholstery?—Wm. L. L.

A. No. Just wash with saddle soap

occasionally to keep it clean and soft.

Q. The engine of my car loads up and skips when the throttle is partly closed after driving at a normal speed. I get this when slowing down to see what the traffic ahead is going to do but without starting to use the brakes. Someone suggested that there might be excessive play in the universal joints.—F. E. M.

A. My idea of this is quite different. I think you will find that the fuel pump's pressure is excessive. The carburetor floods and the mixture then becomes too rich whenever you take your foot off the gas.

Q. What would cause the accelerator pedal of my car to sort of bounce whenever the car is running, especially on a rough road? This is getting to be quite a nuisance.

—H. F. McN.
A. The throttle return spring is weak. Replace it. This is good insurance against breakage of the spring, especially on a car that has seen so much service.

Q. Is it all right to leave the driving control in the "drive" position when getting out of the car for a moment with the engine running, or while people are getting into or out of the car? Or should the control be turned to the "neutral" position.

—B. W. L.
A. Always leave the control in the "neutral" position, otherwise the car would start to move if someone accidentally touched the accelerator pedal.

Q. My repair man doesn't like the idea of soldering the leaky gas tank on my car, and I don't like the price of a new one. Any suggestions?

A. There's a new metal seal which is excellent for checking such leakage.

1951 MERCURY IS ON DISPLAY

Lincoln-Mercury dealers are displaying the new 1951 Mercury in their showrooms and have unveiled for public showing the automobile industry's newest automatic transmission — the Merc-O-Matic.

Combining a torque converter and a three-speed transmission, the Merc-O-Matic provides the equivalent of a four-speed unit. It has a high degree of flexibility, smooth acceleration, improved high gear performance, and a low axle ratio with resulting lower engine speeds while cruising.

The Merc-O-Matic will be one of three transmissions available on the 1951 Mercury — the others being the Many striking styling and functional changes have been made in the 1951 Mercury. A new grille and front end trim, new rear fenders and quarter panels, new bumpers and an extra-large rear window are the principal exterior changes.

The new 1951 Mercury grille has wider bars and a more massive appearance. The bumper has been extended to provide wrap-around protection all the way to the wheel house, and is complemented by an extension to the new grille parking lamp. A new head lamp bezel and a new name plate, placed on a chrome strip just above the grille, complete the new front end.

Even more pronounced are the new rear fenders which have been changed completely, extending in a bold sweep to the extreme end of the car. Large combination tail light and directional signals, outlined in chrome, are other changes in the 1951 model. A huge rear picture window, 29 per cent larger than in pre-

by FREDERICK C. RUSSELL member S.A.E.

Two heads are better than one, but not in the same car.

Jabbing Time Again

We're speeding toward the time of year when all the old tricks for better starting will come into the picture again. Simplest of these is pumping once or twice on the accelerator pedal before cranking. The rule now is to try to get the motor then shows an inclination to be reluctant you'll know the time has arrived for giving the accelerator that pre-start jab which brings the carburetor's acceleration pump into action: A slug of raw gasoline is then injected into the carburetor throat, this fuel being quickly drawn into the intake manifold and cylinders. Avoiding the need for this saves carbon, prevents overloading during the starting period and lessens the risk of having oil washed off the cylinder walls. In other words, if you can get a start without this accelerator pedal aid so much the better.

May Be Kingpin

Just been looking over a magazine in which a motorist is shown to be trying to check for front wheel bearing looseness by shaking one of the front wheels. I suspect he is noticing worn king pins or bushings. The way to tell, with knee action cars, is to insert a wooden wedge between the steering knuckle and the support. On cars without knee action the wedge should be inserted between the steering knuckle and the axle. If there still is shake there's looseness in the wheel itself.

Speaking Of Plugs

If the engine tends to miss when the car is being pushed on an upgrade the chances are that the points of one or two of the plugs have eaten away. Slow drivers need to use hotter spark plugs, otherwise there will be tendency for plug points to foul. If the car is equipped with plugs that are set at a wider gap — .040 inch the ignition coil must be in top form.

With colder weather on the way it is a good idea to have some electrical accessories on the car. Sealed beam headlights, for instance, draw about 12 amperes which is why so many motorist who have converted their lighting systems on older cars have run into battery trouble. The hot water heater will draw 7 amperes. The radio draws 7.5 amperes, while even the ignition system adds 2 amperes to the general load. In winter starting the cranking process will draw anywhere from 250 to 600 amperes.

Mechanic Joe Speaking

"How the gap of a spark plug affects the engine's running is always an interesting topic, and I am surprised that so few owners know why a too narrow gap will cause missing during idling. Just to refresh the failing memory let me state that this is due to the fact that a small quantity of fuel and low compression combine to make a too narrow gap produce a plug miss.

"If the gap is too wide the plug will miss under load when compression is high and the resistance of the plug gap increases."

Keep On Checking

To those who have noticed heel and toe wear on the right front tire and who have switched the right front tire to the left front wheel, I want to warn against assuming that everything will be all right from there on. By all means watch both of the front tires carefully to see if one or both are showing any signs of spotty or abnormal wear. It may be that the front end needs a careful alignment check. What happens to the tires from here on will tell the story if you read it in the trends.

Waxing Made Easier

This is not, as you might suppose, a formula for waxing the car by push button. There are some speedy waxes now available, but I am going to be old-fashioned enough to pass along a few tips on how to make the usual paste wax job a bit easier and more effective.

First of all it is important that the car be clean and brightly polished before any wax is applied. You may need to use tar remover before

Featuring the new Merc-O-Matic automatic transmission, the 1951 Mercury combines many styling and engineering changes. The Merc-O-Matic, developed by Ford Motor Company engineers, is a combination of a torque converter and three-speed transmission which results in a smoothly operating, pleasantly performing drive. New rear fenders and quarter panels, a new grille and front end trim, new bumpers and an extra-large rear window give the 1951 Mercury an ultra-modern appearance. Added smoothness, quietness and an increase in horsepower are present in the improved 112 hp V-8 Mercury engine. New colors and interior trim add to the distinctiveness of the 1951 Mercury. Shown here is the four-door sport sedan.

polishing. Select a clear, dry day for this, but don't do the job in the sun.

Next apply the wax with a soft damp cloth. Try to apply it evenly over an area of about three square feet. Rub with a clean, soft cloth, and follow with another cloth. In fact, have several of these cloths and hang them in the sun to keep dry while rotating them. It isn't necessary to rub hard, but rub quickly so as to create friction and thus dry the wax to a hard finish. You can use some cornstarch on the cloth if drying is difficult.

He Knows Better Now

So the ignition coil doesn't need any attention? That's what a reader of these comments believed until the engine went dead one day when he was trying to overtake another car on a hill. He forgot that the coil on his car is mounted on the engine and that because of the latter's shaking the high tension wire came loose. It is efficient to have the coil as near the distributor as possible, but there was something to be said for the old idea of having the coil securely and comfortably mounted on the firewall. Here it also absorbed less heat. Regardless of the coil's position, however, it still remains that the kindest thing any owner can do to the coil is to keep it clean. This serves to prevent external shorting which moisture will cause if there is enough dirt on the coil to hold it.

This Interesting Field

Observers are talking about those little tire valves. When all tubes were natural rubber and there was more leakage of air through porosity most motorists stopped at a week to add air. This kept the little tire valves working and made it less likely that their rubber parts would become dry and hard. Today's synthetic tires require so much less pressure checking it is found that the valves may leak after a long period of not being unseated by ingoing air. So check for leakage after going a long time without checking pressure or introducing air. The rubber of the valves can be softened by dunking in hydraulic brake fluid. They are inexpensive, however, and easy to replace. But have the tire and wheel jacked up when replacing a valve as it will injure the tube to inflate with a flat tire carrying the car's weight.

In the Motor Mail

Q. Would you advise changing the timing gears in my car. Have nearly 75,000 miles on the odometer, but plan to drive the car only a few more months.—J. L. McB.

A. If the gears needed changing they would be noisy.

Q. Since installing sealed beam headlights, I notice that the fuse block gets very hot. Larger fuses have not helped.—H. K.

A. What you need for this job are relays. With these in the system the regular lighting system merely carries enough current to close the relays. The lights draw directly from the hot post of the starter-motor.

Q. Would you suggest waxing leather upholstery?—Wm. L. L.

A. No. Just wash with saddle soap

occasionally to keep it clean and soft.

Q. The engine of my car loads up and skips when the throttle is partly closed after driving at a normal speed. I get this when slowing down to see what the traffic ahead is going to do but without starting to use the brakes. Someone suggested that there might be excessive play in the universal joints.—F. E. M.

A. My idea of this is quite different. I think you will find that the fuel pump's pressure is excessive. The carburetor floods and the mixture then becomes too rich whenever you take your foot off the gas.

Q. What would cause the accelerator pedal of my car to sort of bounce whenever the car is running, especially on a rough road? This is getting to be quite a nuisance.

—H. F. McN.
A. The throttle return spring is weak. Replace it. This is good insurance against breakage of the spring, especially on a car that has seen so much service.

Q. Is it all right to leave the driving control in the "drive" position when getting out of the car for a moment with the engine running, or while people are getting into or out of the car? Or should the position be turned to the "neutral" position.

—B. W. L.
A. Always leave the control in the "neutral" position, otherwise the car would start to move if someone accidentally touched the acceleration pedal.

Q. My repair man doesn't like the idea of soldering the leaky gas tank on my car, and I don't like the price of a new one. Any suggestions?

—D. L. S.
A. There's a new metal seal which is excellent for checking such leakage.

Today's Talk
BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

"BACKWARD, TURN BACKWARD"

In the poem by Elizabeth Akers Allen entitled "Rock Me to Sleep," the first two lines are:

"Backward, turn backward, O Time, in your flight,
Make me a child again, just for tonight."

These lines came to me after a summer vacation in the quiet of pines, hemlocks, rocky shores, mossy paths and the serenity of surrounding water. They also made me return in memory to the beauty of the countryside, and to the farm where I worked as a boy, and heard the whupwill, the night hawk, the killdeer, and the night calls from the frogs in the pond.

Back in the city, with its heavy traffic and congestion, and its continual noises, those lines by Mrs. Allen kept ringing in my ears. In my memory, I returned to the plough, heard the neighing of the horses, the mooing of the cows, and the early cackling of the hens. And I could feel the dew upon my bare feet as early dawn, and get the smell of hay and grain in the barns.

The fragrance of the good earth, that is all about one in the wide open spaces, is something with which no city dweller is acquainted. Only occasionally does he ever glimpse an early sunrise, or the glory of a celestial sunset. Nature's songs are alien to him. He is a stranger to the quiet and peace of the night. How many of us would like to return to the joy of those days on the farm, or the little town, where neighbors are friends, and where there is a community of thought and interest!

When I note the increasing number of great apartment houses—hundreds of feet in the air, and housing thousands of people in our large cities, I think such homes lose so much, in contrast to those with all nature wrapping them in its arms! I believe there are thousands like myself who have migrated to the city, who never lose that nostalgic feel for the days of youth on the farm or in the small town.

What multitudes have come from the environment of these farms and small places, taking their places in the cities later as leaders and builders, inspired by those early memories and experiences!

IKE'S FUTURE AFFECTED BY N.A. DEFENSE OFFICE

Washington, Oct. 28 (AP)—The possibility that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower may be called to command the North Atlantic Defense forces, cast some new doubt today about his political future.

Eisenhower arrived last night for scheduled talks today with President Truman and Secretary of the Army Face. Many in Washington think these may be preliminary to the general's selection to head the western European military defense setup.

The fact understanding has been that if Eisenhower accepts such an assignment, he will agree to don his uniform again for only a year to get the defense forces organized. That would leave the way open for a return to civilian pursuits, such as his presidency of Columbia University, in the Presidential-picking year of 1952.

He'll Do As He's Told

But Eisenhower told reporters in Charleston, W. Va., yesterday that he, as a soldier, "will do as I am told to do."

Eisenhower has made several disavowals of his suggested candidacy, but nowhere has he said flatly that he would not accept a major party nomination in 1952 if it were offered to him.

Recently when Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York said that if he is re-elected he will try to swing the New York state delegation to Eisenhower at the next Republican national convention, the general politely refrained from slamming the door on such a possibility. He reiterated that his present post gave him ample opportunity for public service but he didn't ask the Governor not to back him at the convention.

No Political Damage

Eisenhower has made it plain in the past that he doesn't think an active military man ought to become a candidate for President. With that in mind, his friends generally believe he would quash any nomination move if he takes the North Atlantic post and finds his job there still unfinished in 1952.

But these same friends speculate that if the early months of that year find Eisenhower busy in civilian life he can be approached about running for President.

Barring unforeseen developments, a year as North Atlantic commander couldn't do Eisenhower any political harm.

The RANGE DOCTOR
by OSCAR J. FRIEND

Chapter 20

Logan stood beside the bed for a long time without moving. Then he sighed, closed the dead man's eyes and folded his arms.

"Doctor," he murmured bitterly. "Doctor! How little a doctor can really do."

He went to his room, found no trace of Griggsby or word from him. Down in the lobby he left notification of Nichols' death and sent word to the undertaker.

Matlock he learned, was still abed. So was Overstreet. Getting one of his horses, he rode by Judge Steele's house where he found the family at breakfast. They invited him to join them, but he wasn't hungry.

"I just wanted to ask about Matlock, Judge," he said. "What has he done about the stage robbery?"

The judge snorted. "You know Matlock. He went out with Tom to the hold-up spot yesterday and came back with the shattered remains of the express box and told me the band had fled to the south."

"He didn't form a posse and go after them?"

"He hasn't gone anywhere. I suppose he figures the outlaws will ride north in the spring, and he can arrest them then."

Logan did not smile at this bitter irony. "Where's Uncle Tom?" he asked next.

The judge shook his head. "Haven't seen him since yesterday afternoon."

"Bob," Mollie asked anxiously, "how is Frank Nichols?"

"He died an hour ago," Logan said. "He didn't wait to see how they took this news. Leaving the house, he mounted his horse and rode out of town, instinctively heading north towards Jess Plum's place. He was filled with unrest. The Range Doctor was stirring in his grave. But where was Griggsby?"

Sunday evening Griggsby had a talk with Jack Overstreet.

"What do you make of this mess, Jack?"

Overstreet was sitting at ease on his divan, a tapering wine glass held on the point of his crossed knees. He stared moodily at the high lights in the amber liquid. Then his dark eyes flashed angrily.

"The shooting of the stage driver was a stupid act," he said. "I guess there's no doubt Holcomb was the man."

"Sure, but I meant whether or not John Naylor is mixed up in the business. Whether Frijole Flats is headquarters for this gang of bandits."

"Frijole Flats?" Overstreet was sharply surprised.

Griggsby told him about Nelly Sims and his sister's message. Overstreet nodded slowly.

"Your hunch might be right," he said. "Do you want to call the committee together and raid Frijole Flats?"

"No. We can't do that without more positive proof. I might be wrong. Here's what I think I'll do. I'm going to Frijole Flats myself and look around. I may have a showdown with Naylor."

"Very well," Overstreet agreed. "I'll go with you."

"Not this time," Jack. Griggsby declined. "You wouldn't be safe from Naylor, anyway. Besides, with Henry away and me out of town, somebody's got to be on hand to take active control of the committee if need be. That Steele can't handle things because of his heart. So you're elected."

Overstreet shrugged and took a sip of his wine. "When do you intend to go?"

"First thing tomorrow. I reckon I'll be back before night, but you'll be here to take charge of things if I'm not. Don't tell anybody where I've gone, particularly Bob. I don't want him running into the mess."

"I don't like this," Overstreet objected frankly. "I think—"

He broke off as there sounded a discreet knock at the door.

"Yes?" he called.

The huge Cajun entered the chamber on noiseless feet. He bore a tray containing Overstreet's late supper which he placed on a small table near the divan.

"Good evening, Mr. Griggsby," he said pleasantly. "I didn't know you were here. May I prepare a salad and some sandwiches for you?"

"No, thanks, Pierre," the editor declined. "I'm leaving right away. You might let me out. How about it, Jack? Obeying my orders?"

"You're the doctor," Overstreet conceded reluctantly.

Then they both looked startled at each other, at his chance choice of words. They smiled wordlessly, tight-lipped poker smiles. Without further speech Griggsby limped to the alley entrance, and the immobile Pierre silently opened the door for him.

It was still gray dawn when Griggsby, muffled up against the chilly wind like a grizzled old bear on the prowl, rode out of town.

A movement down the trail against the sun caught the editor's eye, and he sat quietly as the giant figure of Pierre d'Auberg came swinging along like a pacing horse. Clad in tweeds and a turtle-neck sweater, carrying a heavy walking-stick as lightly as a malacca cane, the huge Cajun halted in surprise.

"Good morning, Mr. Griggsby," he boomed in tones never heard at the Texas Tommy. "Aren't you out exceptionally early, sir?"

"So are you."

"Early but not exceptional. I al-

FLYING SAUCER STIRS TOWN; HOW TO DO IT

(Editors Note: The following story was submitted to the Associated Press with a note that said: "Don't think I'm nuts. I just got fed up with people reporting flying saucers. I made one. It worked fine. We let it go on Friday, a payday when Main street was crowded with shoppers. It seemed as though every telephone in town went action.")

By PETE STEVENSON
(Lock Haven Express Staff Writer)

Lock Haven, Pa., Oct. 28 (AP)—This flying saucer business is nothing to get excited about.

It's easy as pie to build one. It's not much harder to make it fly. There is nothing mysterious about it. Any boy who builds model planes can put a flyable saucer together in a couple of hours.

It took a little invention on the part of the "flying saucer department" of the Lock Haven, Pa., express but on a recent afternoon a saucer flew over central Pennsylvania. It caused quite a stir and traffic was snarled on Main street. Here's how it was done:

What You Need

Go to a shop where model planes are sold. Buy a dozen or so four foot lengths of quarter-inch balsa wood strips. Pick up a few tubes of airplane cement. At a grocery store purchase two or three rolls of aluminum foil. Get a ball of kite string at the dime store—and a box of balloons.

Before setting to work order a tank of Hellum. Most wholesale supply houses carry it. Then follow these instructions and you'll have a flying saucer.

Lay out a circle of balsa strips on the carpet. Secure the ends together with string and cement. Now reinforce the circle with a couple of cross sections of balsa. Repeat the process and you have the top and bottom of your saucer.

Cover the circle frameworks with aluminum foil. Use cellophane tape to secure the seams. Then fill the balloons with helium, placing them between the two circles like the meat in a sandwich. You'll need someone to hold down the top side or it will lift to the ceiling.

Pick A Sunny Day

Don't make the circle larger than the front door or you won't be able to get it outside. Keep the balloons inside the two circular sides by lashing the top and bottom together with string.

You are now ready to go into the flying saucer business. Get your friends to help carry the framework outside. You will find it has a strong urge to rise because of the balloons. Be sure you pick a sunny day. You want that aluminum foil to glisten. They say that's what a saucer does. Make sure there are no trees or telephone wires nearby then let her go and it will rise into the sky. Once the homemade disc is up a hundred feet or so and moves with the wind, you can't tell the difference from a genuine article.

This should settle the flying saucer problem for all time, don't you think?

Grid Receipts Show Big Gain During Season

At a meeting of the Gettysburg high school Athletic council Monday at the high school building it was revealed that there is a balance of $899.17 in the athletic treasury as compared to but $14.47 on September 5.

The entire cost of the installation of the lighting equipment has been paid and only the paying of the notes remain.

BANQUET

First the parson with the blessing,
Then the fruit cup—grape and peach-ies.
Then the lettuce with the dressing
Always served before the speeches.

Next the soup the waiters ladle
From the left across the shoulder.
Hard rolls in a wicker cradle,
Luke warm chicken, getting colder.

Double dip of mashed potatoes,
Peas and carrots, green and yellow.
Either those or stewed tomatoes.
Then the chairman!—Witty fellow.

Summer's gone! Now homeward travel
All the sun-tanned pleasure seekers.
Coffee's served! So pound the gravel.
Settle back and hear the speakers.

New Oxford—The statues have been obtained for the grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes, built during the spring and summer at the Catholic Cemetery east of town by volunteer labor of Catholic men of the area. There are to be two pure white statues in the niches hallowed in to the grotto, to represent the scene of the apparition of the Blessed Virgin Mary in the cave at Lourdes, to Bernadette Soubirous, a fourteen-year-old French peasant girl, in 1854, while Bernadette, now a canonized saint in the Catholic church, had paused at the grotto to kneel in prayer.

Chapter 20

Logan stood beside the bed for a long time without moving. Then he sighed, closed the dead man's eyes and folded his arms.

"Doctor," he murmured bitterly. "Doctor! How little a doctor can really do."

He went to his room, found no trace of Griggsby or word from him. Down in the lobby he left notification of Nichols' death and sent word to the undertaker.

Matlock he learned, was still abed. So was Overstreet. Getting one of his horses, he rode by Judge Steele's house where he found the family at breakfast. They invited him to join them, but he wasn't hungry.

"I just wanted to ask about Matlock, Judge," he said. "What has he done about the stage robbery?"

The judge snorted. "You know Matlock. He went out with Tom to the hold-up spot yesterday and came back with the shattered remains of the express box and told me the band had fled to the south."

"He didn't form a posse and go after them?"

"He hasn't gone anywhere. I suppose he figures the outlaws will ride north in the spring, and he can arrest them then."

Logan did not smile at this bitter irony. "Where's Uncle Tom?" he asked next.

The judge shook his head. "Haven't seen him since yesterday afternoon."

"Bob," Mollie asked anxiously, "how is Frank Nichols?"

"He died an hour ago," Logan said. "He didn't wait to see how they took this news. Leaving the house, he mounted his horse and rode out of town, instinctively heading north towards Jess Plum's place. He was filled with unrest. The Range Doctor was stirring in his grave. But where was Griggsby?"

Sunday evening Griggsby had a talk with Jack Overstreet.

"What do you make of this mess, Jack?"

Overstreet was sitting at ease on his divan, a tapering wine glass held on the point of his crossed knees. He stared moodily at the high lights in the amber liquid. Then his dark eyes flashed angrily.

"The shooting of the stage driver was a stupid act," he said. "I guess there's no doubt Holcomb was the man."

"Sure, but I meant whether or not John Naylor is mixed up in the business. Whether Frijole Flats is headquarters for this gang of bandits."

"Frijole Flats?" Overstreet was sharply surprised.

Griggsby told him about Nelly Sims and his sister's message. Overstreet nodded slowly.

"Your hunch might be right," he said. "Do you want to call the committee together and raid Frijole Flats?"

"No. We can't do that without more positive proof. I might be wrong. Here's what I think I'll do. I'm going to Frijole Flats myself and look around. I may have a showdown with Naylor."

"Very well," Overstreet agreed. "I'll go with you."

"Not this time," Jack. Griggsby declined. "You wouldn't be safe from Naylor, anyway. Besides, with Henry away and me out of town, somebody's got to be on hand to take active control of the committee if need be. That Steele can't handle things because of his heart. So you're elected."

Overstreet shrugged and took a sip of his wine. "When do you intend to go?"

"First thing tomorrow. I reckon I'll be back before night, but you'll be here to take charge of things if I'm not. Don't tell anybody where I've gone, particularly Bob. I don't want him running into the mess."

"I don't like this," Overstreet objected frankly. "I think—"

He broke off as there sounded a discreet knock at the door.

"Yes?" he called.

The huge Cajun entered the chamber on noiseless feet. He bore a tray containing Overstreet's late supper which he placed on a small table near the divan.

"Good evening, Mr. Griggsby," he said pleasantly. "I didn't know you were here. May I prepare a salad and some sandwiches for you?"

"No, thanks, Pierre," the editor declined. "I'm leaving right away. You might let me out. How about it, Jack? Obeying my orders?"

"You're the doctor," Overstreet conceded reluctantly.

Then they both looked startled at each other, at his chance choice of words. They smiled wordlessly, tight-lipped poker smiles. Without further speech Griggsby limped to the alley entrance, and the immobile Pierre silently opened the door for him.

It was still gray dawn when Griggsby, muffled up against the chilly wind like a grizzled old bear on the prowl, rode out of town.

A movement down the trail against the sun caught the editor's eye, and he sat quietly as the giant figure of Pierre d'Auberg came swinging along like a pacing horse. Clad in tweeds and a turtle-neck sweater, carrying a heavy walking-stick as lightly as a malacca cane, the huge Cajun halted in surprise.

"Good morning, Mr. Griggsby," he boomed in tones never heard at the Texas Tommy. "Aren't you out exceptionally early, sir?"

"So are you."

"Early but not exceptional. I al-

Albert Rose Is Named Head of Future Farmers: The Appie County Chapter of the Future Farmers of America met Tuesday evening at the Gettysburg high school building and elected officers for the coming year.

These officers were chosen: President, Albert Rose, Biglerville; first vice president, Lloyd Benner, Gettysburg; second vice president, Ernest Robert, Gettysburg; third vice president, Carson Lamberson, New Oxford; secretary, John White, Fairfield; treasurer, George Myers, East Berlin and reporter, Donald Rouner, Biglerville.

Zepp-Slaybaugh: Miss Hazel Slaybaugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Crst. Slaybaugh, Aspers, and Clair Zepp, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Zepp, York Springs, were united in marriage on Sunday in the Lutheran church at Winchester, Virginia. The single ceremony was performed by the Rev. Carl Honeycutt, pastor.

The couple will reside in their newly furnished apartment in Harrisburg.

Collegians Receive Plaque from Legion: At ceremonies on the Gettysburg college campus Thursday morning at 7:45 o'clock, Commander Roy A. Alexander of the Albert J. Lertz post No. 222 of the American Legion, presented to the Reserve Officers Training Corps of the college a plaque on which will be inscribed the name of the best drilled company in the corps as determined at annual spring competition.

Cadet Captain Chauncey Sanner, Commander of Company C, received the plaque as the present command-

Members of 1890 Team Honored at Dinner: Seventy persons gathered at a dinner in Hotel Gettysburg Friday evening to honor the football team of 1890 at its fiftieth anniversary.

Four members of the team were present. They were G. W. Boyer, C. E. Filbert, The Rev. J. C. Nickolas and the Rev. Stanley Billheimer. George H. Hummel was toastmaster for the dinner.

Speakers were Walter P. Okeson, C. L. S. Raby, Martin Levins, Clarence E. Keys, Henry T. Bream and Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson.

Vary-Deaner: Miss Sara R. Deaner, daughter of Conrad W. Deaner, of Gettysburg and C. William Deaner, of York and Mrs. C. W. Deaner, of York, were united in marriage at Grace Lutheran parsonage, Westminster, Maryland, on Saturday, October 12. The Rev. Dr. Paul W. Quay performed the ceremony. The bridegroom is associated Personal Events: Mr. and Mrs. John D. Lapp have closed "woodcrest Lodge," their summer home near Zora, and returned to their recently remodeled apartment on Chambersburg street for the winter.

Miss Betty Strausbaugh, who completed her training as a student nurse at the Harrisburg hospital in September, is spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Strausbaugh, West Broadway.

Adams County History

This is the seventh and last of a series on the history of Adams county, written by Dr. Robert Forterbaugh, professor of history at Gettysburg college for the county's sesquicentennial year, and published in the monthly bulletin of the Department of Internal Affairs.

After the Civil War and into the first quarter of the 20th century Adams County usually elected for county offices the candidates of the Democratic Party. Since about the time of World War I the preponderance has been with the Republican Party. There have, however, been through the years since 1865 many exceptions in county-wide elections. Some Republicans were elected while the Democrats held sway, and some Democrats were elected under Republican domination. For example, the President Judges have been William McClean, Democrat, 1874-1894; S. McSwope, Republican, 1894-1916; Donald P. MacPherson, Republican, 1916-1936, and W. Clarence Shelly, Democrat, 1936.

Republican Stronghold

Also the dominance has been different in the several districts. Gettysburg has been a Republican stronghold, while Franklin Township has been as strongly Democratic. This has held, and the same in other districts, regardless of how the whole county voted, again with some notable exceptions as in the elections of President Judges.

It is notable that no third party since 1865 has shown any appreciable strength in Adams County.

The constitutional basis of government changed with the adoption of the present constitution of the Commonwealth, effective January 1, 1874.

Since 1865 Adams County has been included in a Congressional district which also included other nearby counties. The present arrangement (Act of 1943) is that Adams, Franklin and York Counties comprise the Twenty-first District. The same has been true of the State Senatorial District arrangement. The present arrangement (Act of 1921, as amended) is that Adams and Franklin Counties comprise the Thirty-third Senatorial District. The present arrangement is that Adams has one representative in the House of Representatives (Act of 1921, as amended). At times the county had two representatives.

Economic Development

After 1865 Adams County continued to have its principal economic interest in agriculture and this with industries related thereto is true today, but in relatively less degree. General subsistence farming continued to be the rule until about the turn of the century when a degree of specialization began, but even though specialization has developed to a high degree in several different lines, it has not shifted the balance away from heavy dependence on general farming for most of the farmers.

The principal form of specialization has been fruit-raising. From this has come the important industry of fruit processing. The first large commercial orchard in the county consisting of 2000 trees, was planted by Noah Shelly, near Cash-town in 1878. The first carlot shipment of apples from the county was from this orchard in 1893. Prior to this, certain persons, notably the Griests, the Kosers, and the Tysons, had begun experimenting with fruit growing in the Biglerville-Quaker Valley area. Later a considerable planting of peach trees was made and still later of cherries.

Farm Statistics

What Adams County has become in the last 50 or 75 years in agricultural production is shown by the following statistics: 1945—Occupied farm dwellings, 3520; with electricity, 2548; 50.8 per cent of all farms had tractors; 26 per cent had trucks, and 83.6 per cent autos. Of the land, 30.5 per cent in fruit land; 69.5 per cent in non-fruit land, but 78.7 per cent in general farm land. It has 3149 farms with 264,929 farm acreage, of which 181,061 is arable. Rural farm population, 13,258 as of 1940. Total value of farm land and buildings, $18,156,479. Average value of farm, $5,706. Average value per acre, $68.53. Approximate value of products sold, $10,363,760. Average value of each farm reporting, $3,327. Value of specified crops harvested: Total, $8,997,798; grain, $4,218,736; fruit, $4,036,568 — first in rank in Pennsylvania; vegetables, $3,539,540.

Tomatoes are also largely raised, as are chickens, both for market and egg production.

In 1949 the yield of apples was upward of 3,000,000 bushels. By reason of new planting the county is in very favorable position in apple production.

From the fruit, and to a less extent from the vegetable, production, has grown the important processing industry, Adams County's largest single industry.

An important agency for promoting the interests of agriculture has been the Agricultural Extension Association, organized in the summer of 1916, and supported by Federal, state, and local funds.

Because of the location of the Hanover Shoe Farms largely in Adams County the claim was made that during 1946 Adams County ranked second in the United States in the production of racing horses, by Fayette County in Kentucky, being ahead of it.

Mining Activities

Mining of iron which had some significance in the first half of the 19th century was abandoned in the 1870's. Some copper mining had been carried on in Gettysburg, near Hunterstown and at Stone Jug with insignificant results. In the later years of the century some interest was shown in developing known copper deposits in the mountains near Pottsville but with no permanent results. Important limestone quarries were opened between Hanover and New Oxford and others of less importance in other parts of the southern and eastern sections. Clay for brick-making was taken out in Gettysburg and notably southeast of New Oxford where a large operation is still carried on. Production of roofing granules at Greenstone has been highly profitable.

The greater number of those in Adams County who have benefited from educational opportunities have received these through the public schools. A major fraction, however, have attended or are attending parochial schools maintained by Catholic parishes in Gettysburg, New Oxford, McSherrystown, Littlestown, Bonneauville and Conewago Chapel. St. Joseph's Academy at McSherrystown is the one strictly private school any longer operating in the county, while the Delone Catholic High School, at the edge of McSherrystown is the only private high school. Gettysburg College operated an academy until 1935. The College has doubled its enrollment twice during this period and both times as a result of a world war and its attendant conditions. Before 1917 the college enrollment was never over 300. After that it was normally about 600. In 1949 it was 1,245. The Theological Seminary had an enrollment of about 50 until the 1920's when it usually was 65-75. In 1949 it was 103.

Religious Development

The religious development of Adams County continued along the same lines after 1865 as before that year. The development was marked by the organization of new congregations of various denominations, and particularly by the growth in total membership of the congregations, whether long-established or recently organized. There has never been a non-Christian religious organization in the county, although a few Jewish families have lived from time to time in several communities, observing their religious festivals in their homes, or visiting centers of established worship. None of the Eastern Orthodox Churches has ever had an organization in the county, although in later years some Greek Orthodox Catholics have lived in the county. These also have visited established centers of worship on special occasions, or have had the services of visiting priests for special needs. All of the Roman Catholic Churches which now flourish, except that at McSherrystown, were organized before 1865. A Christian Science Society has been active in Gettysburg since 1924. In the 1870's an Episcopal congregation was formed in Gettysburg and is the only functioning congregation of that denomination, since Christ Church at York Springs is no longer active. One Quaker Meeting, Menallen, continues a vigorous existence. Lutherans organized new congregations as follows: St. Paul, Littlestown, 1867; Grace, Two Taverns, 1877; St. James, Wenksville, 1878; St. Paul's, Biglerville, 1881; St. Paul's, McSherrystown, 1893; Christ, Aspers, 1914.

The Reformed Church established St. John's, McKnightstown, 1875, and Trinity, Cashtown, 1877.

Other Denominations

The Methodist church established churches at Wenksville, 1872; Orrtanna, 1893, continuing Chamberlain's.

The United Brethren established a church at Biglerville, 1873, and Gettysburg, 1890.

The Church of the Brethren added Hampton Meeting House and Trostle's to the Upper Conewago congregation in 1874, and East Berlin in 1899, and added the Gettysburg Meeting House to the Marsh Creek congregation in 1904.

The African Methodist Episcopal Zion congregation was established in Gettysburg some time after 1875. A small church building was later erected which was enlarged to the present size in 1917. St. John's Baptist has existed for many years in Gettysburg but had only infrequent services, and the same is true of the Asbury Methodist church in Gettysburg.

In this period the following churches, each one the sole representative of its denomination, have been established: Brethren in Christ, Iron Springs; Church of God, near York Springs; the Four-Square Gospel church in Gettysburg; Bethel Mennonite Meeting has recently been established in Mummansburg, and in the 1920's the Fairfield Mennonite church was founded.

Interesting Sidelights

The largest meteorite ever found east of the Mississippi river located in 1887 by Jacob Snyder near Two Taverns. Weighed 800 pounds, and sold for $700. Portions of it are in several museums.

Adams county's two famous resorts or watering-places: Gettysburg Katalysine Springs; York Sulphur Springs.

The old Studebaker blacksmith shop still stands north of Hunters-town. Here John Studebaker, father of Clem Studebaker, founder of the famous wagon factory, later automobile factory, made wagons.

On August 25, 1802, Francis Scott Key, of Maryland, later author of

East Berlin

East Berlin — Wayne Thomas, Thomasville R. 1, a graduate of the 1947 class of East Berlin high school, who has been studying voice for about five years with Mrs. Mildred Rogers Dunstan, New Oxford R. 2, and who has become well known as a lyric baritone within the last two years, is now featured in popular recorded numbers. The East Berlin Clothing store has a window display featuring several portraits of the young singer, with printed comments by music critics concerning him. Wayne is the younger son of Mrs. Fanny Eyster Thomas and the late George Thomas.

Dr. Eugene Elgin, local physician who is also connected with the State Board of Health, Harrisburg, spent the past week in Philadelphia where he attended the convention of the Pennsylvania Medical society which saw the first color-television showing ever released to the public.

Annual Rally Day services are scheduled for Sunday at Trinity Lutheran church. Homecoming took place last Sunday at the church of which the Rev. Lester J. Karschner is pastor.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Gebhart and children, formerly of near here, expect to move shortly from Hanover where they have lived several years, to the former Franklin Hetrick property near Abbottstown which they purchased at public sale by Mr. Hetrick's estate several weeks ago.

Mrs. Herbert B. Hershey, R. 1, has been confined to the Warner hospital for several days for treatment of a fractured shoulder and other injuries sustained during the past week when she fell down a stairway at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Myers, near Thomasville, have named their recently born son Edward. Mr. and Mrs. Myers have three other children. The paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Myers, R. 2.

Warren Truitt, who recently returned after several days of treatment at the West Side Osteopathic hospital, New York, is steadily improving and able to be about each day.

Charles, daughter of Mr. Donald P. Muhl, has recovered from a severe injury to her face sustained several weeks ago when she was struck by a swing at the borough school playground.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar C. Reynolds entertained at dinner at their home on Sunday for a group of friends from the Hanover area.

Harry Baker, who resides with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Baker, near Mummert's Meeting House, and assists them on their farm, is also assisting at the farm of his cousin, Roy E. Grove, near Abbottstown, who has been under the care of a doctor due to a severe attack of arthritis.

The Rev. and Mrs. Allen M. Leister spent a day in Hanover during the week.

El J. Cross, who has been in ill health for some time and also became totally blind during the summer, is recuperating at his home after an operation for the removal of an eye. Although his condition following the operation is satisfactory, Mr. Cross has more trouble due to having been forced to submit to the removal of his other eye several years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Spangler and daughter, Joyce, Red Lion, were Sunday visitors at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Rupp, and also of her uncle, Elder A. Rupp, and family, R. 1.

Miss Elizabeth Delone, R. 1, was a recent visitor to the Hanover home at her aunt Mrs. Charles J. Delone.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ruppert, near Red Lion church, are preparing to hold public sale of stock and farming effects and expect to move to their newly built cottage in the Dover area.

Arostock county, Mr. grew 99 per cent of Maine's potatoes in 1947.

present for various other organized events showed an attendance of approximately 13,000. An estimated 2,000 more used the park "on their own" for various events. In addition several thousand visited the field during the firemen's festival held there over the July 4 period.

In addition to the various leagues, games, contests, special events, and programs at the recreation field, the association also carries out an active program of winter activities including basketball leagues, valley ball, checkers, and the like held at the high school.

The ultimate plan of the recreation association is to provide activities for everyone in every age group.

Attorney Richard A. Brown, of the recreation board noted today. That day, he added, is still several years in the future, but he pointed to the tremendously increased activities over the past several years and added "that day however is closer than we would have dreamed possible when the association was formed only a few years ago."

Emmitsburg

JACOBS HOME DAMAGED BY FIRE ON FRIDAY

Fire, believed to have started from an overheated chimney, almost completely destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Jacobs on the Lower Tract road between Emmitsburg and Fairfield, about three miles from Emmitsburg Friday night.

When discovered by Mr. Jacobs at 6:30 o'clock the fire had already burned through the roof near the chimney. Mrs. Jacobs had gone with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Lowe to Emmitsburg shopping and Jacobs was alone at the time of the fire. Jacobs called and fired several shots to attract the attention of a neighbor, Fred A. Karlquist to the fire. Karlquist called the Fairfield and the Emmitsburg fire companies.

The fire, which destroyed the upper part of the house completely, was finally brought under control by use of two small portable pumps. The Emmitsburg pumper was used to draw water from a deep well at the barn and the Fairfield pumper drew water from a small stream about 150 yards from the house.

Furniture Saved

Herbert Rogers, president of the Emmitsburg Fire company, said, following the fire that the portable pumper was "worth its weight in gold." It was purchased after the Boyle home in the same neighborhood was completely destroyed last spring. The portable pumper would have probably saved the Boyle home, Rogers noted.

All the furniture was carried from the Jacobs home by firemen and

PLAY ATTRACTS 500 AT SCHOOL

Approximately 500 students, parents and teachers attended the annual senior class play, "A Date with Judy", a comedy in three acts on Friday night in Littlestown high school auditorium. This play was directed by Miss LeOra Heil of the faculty.

Seven members of the class served as ushers. They were Ruth Bucher, Louella Cebhart, Carolyn Orndorf, Anna Spangler, Joanne Stites, Nanette Waterman and Lois Lee Cluck. Betty Hess was the prompter and Clyde Harner was stage manager. Charles E. Tressler was in charge of the stage scenery and lights; Garnet E. Schellhaus prepared tickets and programs and Rodney L. Law was in charge of the posters and the "make-up." The corsages were through the courtesy of Koon's Florist shop.

Miss Marion Stavelly, a student nurse at the Union Memorial hospital, Baltimore, and Miss Elaine Stavelly, a nurse at the Garfield Memorial hospital, Washington, are spending the week-end with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Stavelly, Crouse Park.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock for Mrs. Annie D. Kump, 79, widow of Raymond Kump, who died Wednesday at 3:30 p.m., following an extended illness. Services will be conducted at her late home, South Queen street extended, Littlestown, by her pastor, the Rev. David S. Kammerer, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church of which the deceased was a life-long member. Interment will be in the Mt. Carmel cemetery. Pallbearers will be George Mayers, Paul Scheibert, Howard Trostle, Mark Spangler, Walter Groce and Amos Spangler.

Big VFW Party

Approximately 500 attended the Halloween party on Friday night at Basehart's skating rink, sponsored by the Mason and Dixon Memorial Post No. 6954, VFW, for the children of Littlestown and vicinity up to an including eighth grade of both the public and parochial schools.

Prizes were awarded for the most original, funniest and fanciest dressed costumes and also for the smallest child present. Halloween favors were given to everybody. Five reels of movies were shown—two cartoons, "Water Sports," "Hunting" and "Hopalong Cassidy." The committee in charge consisted of John H. Riley, chairman; Harold Redding, Marion Bay, James Kuhns, Earl Weaver. They were assisted by the Ladies' Auxiliary.

A Halloween party was given on Friday afternoon for the children of St. Aloysius Parochial school and the smaller children of the congregation by the St. Aloysius Parish council of Catholic Women. There were games and refreshments and prizes were awarded for costumes. Mrs. George Ernst was chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements.

There will be a meeting of the publicity committee of the committee from the Woman's Community club of Littlestown and vicinity that is preparing for the supper, bazaar and food sale on December 2 in the Littlestown high school cafeteria to raise a fund to purchase new uniforms for the high school senior band. This meeting will be held Monday at 3 p.m. at the home of the chairman, Mrs. Robert Miller, Lumber street. Other members of the committee are Mrs. Luther Ritter, Mrs. Robert Eckenrode, Mrs. Paul E. Altoff, Mrs. Paul Bowman, Mrs. H. Dean Stover, Mrs. Carl Baumgardner and Mrs. Chester S. Byers.

Some 5,000 natives of the Ryukyu Islands now worship at 25 Christian churches of various denominations. The 350 metric tons of frozen frogs exported from Japan had a total value of $494,577.

neighbors when it looked as if there was no chance of saving the house. Later the furniture was carried to the barn and a nearby shed.

Mr. Jacobs said that the insurance on the property was not near adequate to cover the loss.

An Emmitsburg fireman, George Ashbaugh, Jr., received a severe cut on the palm of his right hand, while fighting the blaze. A tourniquet was applied and he was taken to the office of Dr. W. R. Cadle in Emmitsburg. Six stitches were required to close the wound.
